DAUGHERTY HAS RESIGNED!

BITTERLY ASSAILS HIS ENEMIES

QUITS CABINET UNDER FIRE OF PARTY LEADERS

Attorney General Finally Surrenders Post At Request of President Coolidge Following Conference This Morning——Retired While Surrounded by Growing Storm of Criticism ——Is Effective At Once.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Attorney-General Daugherty stepped out of the cabinet today at the request of President Coolidge and then, once more a private citizen, made a sizzling attack on those who forced him out of office.

Cowardice." and "surrender of principle," the retiring attorney-general declared in an open letter to the president, never should be permitted to dictate policies based on "party expediency."

In asking for the resignation Mr. Coolidge declared his decision was based on a deep conviction that Mr. Daugherty could not adequately perform his duties as a distinguished public servant while defending himself before the Senate Investigating Committee.

These reasons the attorney-general swept aside in his reply as "unwarranted by the facts." The real purpose of the whole assault upon him he said was to dethrone law and order and by a constantly extending attack on the administration generally to set up an inquisition of "scandal and terrorism."

The White House made no comment and as soon as he had dispatched his rejoinder to the president, Mr. Daugherty said good-bye to the cares of his troublous administration of the Department of Justice and boarded a train for Atlantic City.

The resignation was submitted at the reques' of the president and in acceding, Mr. Daugherty said he desired it to become effective forthwith.

Mr. Daugherty said he tendered it "solely out of deference to your request and in compliance therewith."

President Coolidge's letter requesting the resignation based the request on the attorney general's refusal to comply with the summons by the Senate investigating committee for certain papers relating to gun running on the Mexican border

The incident, the president said in his letter, "only illustrates the difficulties which are certain to recur with ever increasing embarrassment and your inability to perform satisfactorily the duties of attorney general under present sonditions."

President Coolidge's letter to the attorney general requesting his resignation was written under date of March 27th. It follows:

"My Dear Mr. Attorney General:

"Since my conference with you I have examined the proposed reply you suggest making to the demand that you furnish the committee investigating the department of justice with files from that department, relating to litigation and to he bureau of investigation You represent to me and the committee in your letter that it would not be compatible with the public interest to comply with the demand and wish to conclude you letter with a statement that I approve that position.

"Certainly I approve the well established principle that departments should not give out information or documents where such a course would be detrimental to the publical interest and this principle is always peculiarly applicable to your department, which has such an intimate relation to the administration of justice. But you will readily perceive that I am unable to form any independent judgment in this instance without a long and intricate investigation of voluminous papers which I cannot personally make and so I should be compelled to follow the usual practice in such cases and rely upon your advice as attorney general and head of the department of justice.

"But you will see at once that the committee is investigating your personal conduct and you have become an interested party and the committee wants these papers on a claim they disclose your personal conduct of the department.

"Assuming the conduct of the committee is appropriately limited to designated files, still the situation will always be the same. In view of the fact that the inquiry relates to your personal conduct, you are not in a position to give to me or the committee what would be disinterested advice as to the public interest.

"You have a personal interest in this investigation which is being made of the conduct of yourself and your office, which may be in conflict with your official interest as the attorney general. I am not questioning your fairness or integrity. I am merely reciting the fact that you are placed in two positions, one your personal interest, the other your office of attorney general, which may be in conflict.

"How can I satisfy a request for action in matters of this nature on the ground that you, as attorney general, advise against it, when you as the individual against whom the inquiry is directed necessarily have a personal interest in it? I do not see how you can be acting for yourself in your own defense in this matter and at the same time and on the same question acting as my adviser as attorney general.

"These two positions are incompatible and cannot be reconciled. I am sure you will see that it is necessary for me to have the advice of a disinterested attorney general, in order that I may discharge the duties of my office in this and other matters. I feel certain that you will know how deeply I regret that this situation has arisen. It only illustrates the difficulties which are certain to recur with ever-increasing embarrassment and your inability to perform satisfactorily the duties of attorney general under present conditions.

"You will readily understand that it is not now my intention to prejudice the interests which remain to be developed in this investigation. I concede you are entitled to full and fair hearing, but as there is no way in which you may divest yourself of the interest you have personally in the investigation I can see no way but for you to retire as attorney general and I am therefore, compelled to request your resignation

"Very truly yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE"

The Attorney General's reply, written today, follows:

"My Dear Mr President:

"I hereby acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 27th, by the hand of your secretary, requesting my resignation as attorney general of the United States

"Solely out of deference to your request and in compliance therewith. I hereby tender my resignation. While you do not state when you desire my resignation to become effective, I most respectfully request that it become effective forthwith.

"Yours very truly.
"H. M. DAUGHERTY."
"Attorney General."

The correspondence was made public at the White House without comment, but at the Department of Justice Mr. Daugherty immediately prepared a statement setting forth again his side of the question. This statement took the form of a second letter to the president in which the retiring attorney general declared the grounds on which his retirement had been forced seemed to him "untenable."

Any suggestion that he could not "function as attorney general and defend myself against these charges at the same time," the letter said, was "hardly warranted by the facts."

Mr. Daugherty recalled that he twice had offered since Mr. Coolidge became president to retire, but had been requested to remain. H said he was aware that the argument of party expediency had been used to secure his retirement but added that "cowardice and surrender of principle are never expedient."

RESIGNS!

HARRY M DAUGHERTY

The factor, which had greatest weight in bringing the question of Mr. Daugherty's status to an acute issue was a conviction on the part of the president that under the present conditions public business is not receiving the attention merited by it in department of justice.

Since the Senate investigation of the department beganon March 12th, Mr. Coolidge has seen plain indications that some department officials were giving a large part of their attention to the defense of Mr. Daugherty, to the apparent detriment of their regular pursuits.

There is no doubt also that the repeated charges made before the Senate committee, leading directly to the door of the attorney-general office although not involving him directly have had their influence in finally determining his fate

Mr Daugherty had insisted that he be permitted to remain in office until he had been given opportunity to answer fully all the charges made before the investigating committee As the testimony has developed, however, it has become apparent that if he were to vindicate his department it would become necessary for him to disprove also the charges against Jess Smith and others closely associated with him

Besides the Daugherty committee disclosures, testimony has been given before the oil committee that the attorney-general dealt in Sinclair oil stock after he entered the cabinet, that he and others in the justice department were seeking to shield Edward B McLean from appearance on the witness stand in the oil inquiry and that McLean himself was a secret agent of the department.

In deciding in favor of another break in the cabinet, President Coolidge followed almost unanimous advice of Republicans in the Senate, some of whom including Senator Borah of Idaho, have been urging for weeks that Mr. Daugherty had lost the confidence of the country.

Retention of Mr. Daugherty in the cabinet was one of the strongest links by which President Coolidge, when he assumed office, tied up the political fortunes of his administration with those of the uncompleted administration of his predecessor. Lon ga personal friend of Mr. Harding, the retiring attorney general was the pre-convention Harding campaign manager in 1920 and he entered the cabinet acclaimed as the Warwick of the new regime in Washington.

Throughout President Harding's lifetime their close association remained unbroken. When criticism of the attorney general began and when his usefulness had been greatly impaired a year ago by illness, Mr. Harding assured him that he would find only support and confidence at the White House.

The post of attorney general was the first high public place ever held by Mr. Daugherty and his administration of the department of justice was perhaps more continually under fire during his tenure of office than any

PROTEST AGAINST PUTTING ON SALE CEMETERY LOTS

By FORREST WHITE
(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

BERKELEY, Cal., March 28. — On many occasions, eminent writers with no intention of levity have intimated that California is a place populated largely by real estate agents and that if any sacred spots are unadorned by "For Sale' 'signs, they are few, far between and hard to find.

There is no denying that the real estate gentry have never beeen conspicuous by their absence in California, but it also must be admitted they are both an aggressive and progressive and progressive lot If any evidence is lacking on this score, it will be found right here in the effete super-college city of Berkeley. Just now the state realty commission, which looks into and after licenses and the moral qualities of realty venders is trying to determine whether the local "memorial association" shall be allowed to sell cemetery lots as a speculative proposition.

The concern, according to statements laid before the state commission has been advertizing that opportunity to buy realty holdings, which in the next few years, will double and triple and even quadruple in value. So far as is known, this is the first recorded instance even in California, where efforts have been made to induce the public to gamble in future values of its eternal abiding place.

The so-called "Memorial Association" started an advertising campaign two weeks ago Porspectus and display space dwelt heavily upon the opportunities and nice places for those who, figuratively speaking, got in on the ground floor. Then, following protests by the local association of realty men, backed by the chamber of commerce, operations of the burial plot concern were temporarily halted Considerable mystery surrounds the allegations which brought the estop order The case is now under consideration and a decision expected within a few days Pending a decision the state commission declines to make any statement for public consumption.

Locally, however, two different reasons are being advanced One is that realty men contend there is still enough land in California to sell to Eastern without falling back on burial plots The other is that Berkeley chamber of commerce, like many others all over the state, construe the scheme as a backhand slap at California's wondrous climate, where migrating Easterners, as well as natives, are supposed never to have any use for burial plots.

CROSS EXAMINE LEE TODAY; HE DENIES CHARGES

Head of Game Department Declares He Did Not Waste Funds of State

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Va., Mach 28.— Cross examination of Commissioner McDonald Lee, of the Virginia Game and Inland Fisheries Department, as to expenditures made by him during the past two years was on the program of the special legislative investigating committee today

The committee already had received a vigorous denial from the witness that he had wasted state funds and used state boats for "Illegal and immoral purposes" Admissions were made by him, however, that he had one traveling salesman, perhaps two, and a capitol janitor on his payroll as wardens. The official also admitted that he had employed wardens to catch carp and had allowed them to retain money derived from the sale of the fish.

Chairman Willis, of Roanoke, asked the witness if it were true that a fee had been paid a "lawyer who was a lobbyist.

An item of $850 covered all the attorneys fees paid out by the department during the past two years, Commissioner Lee replied.

Asked if he had ever paid any fee to a lobbyist, the witness replied:

"Never one cent, never. If I was not a good enough lobbyist myself, my bills died.

"When I was charged with lobbying on the floor of the Senate at the last session, I had twenty-four relating to my department under consideration. Fifteen of these originated in my department and the others related to it."

Commissioner Lee defended his employment of the traveling salesman on the ground that the man, George Gresham, of Lancaster, traveled within a radius of his state duties. The capitol janitor had been retained, the witness continued because he travels each day from Dutch Gap to Richmond in a motor boat in the James River. The warden, he said, was in a position to discharge his duties at a saving to the state.

Both wardens were employed on a part time basis, he asserted, adding that under the law he was strictly within his rights in retaining them. Only a few full time wardens operate in the state, the witness testified.

Retention of wardens to fish for carp was a part of a department campaign being conducted to control the "piscatorial hog of Virginia waters" Commissioner Lee said. Five wardens were employed and each paid a salary of $100 a month, but nothing was paid the crew working under them, he said, although all were allowed to keep funds received fro mthe sale of the carp.

"Although I am the autocrat of a thousand principalities, as commissioner, I have a cabinet," the witness declared. "No act as important as this is ever decided upon except in conference."

During his cross examination late yesterday, Delegate Gordon of Louisa, counsel for Senator Stubbs of Middlesex, who brought allegations against the commissioner, asked specific questions as to the equipment of the department's offices in Richmond. He disclosed by the witness that the commissioner has a bed in his office located in a Richmond hotel.

Thomas Poole Is Reported Better

(Special to The Bee.)

HALIFAX, Va., March 28 —Thomas G. Poole, of Virgilina, whose trial was to have taken place here yesterday, is reported in advices received here as being well on the road to recovery at Grace Hospital, Richmond, though it may be several days before he is able to return to his home in Halifax.

People at Virgilina were not aware that Poole would not be present at the court here yesterday and his failure to appear has been freely commented upon by many people. Enquiries reveal that his condition so far as known had not taken any sudden turn for the worse. It was known he had suffered from a kidney complaint but he was up and about Virgilina during the past week. Further enquiries show that he purchased a ticket to Danville on Saturday with the apparent intent of going to Washington.

The next step in the Poole case will be on April 7th when James S. Easely, commissioner of accounts in Halifax, will take up the question of the Virgilina bank's court though probably not at the current term.

Circle 3 of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Main St. Methodist church will hold a cake, candy and doughnut sale at Clarke Elec. Co., Saturday morning at 10 o'clock

TOBACCO TRADE SEES BLOW IN SHIPPING ORDER

Danville Organizations Send Col. Holcombe to Washington to Fight Compulsion of Shippers to Use American Bottoms.

The Danville Tobacco Association held a called meeting at ten o'clock this morning in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of considering what is now regarded as a blow to the export tobacco trade of such proportions as to warrant immediate action. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the announcement made in Washington during the past few days by the United States Shipping Board that section 28 of the Merchant Marine Act, would be put into force on May 20th.

The effect of this act is to compel exporters to use American ships in forwarding various commodities to overseas consumers and it applies not only to tobacco but to other commodities manufactured or prepared in this country.

The Board of Trade forseeing retaliatory steps by the British government which consumes a large portion of the crop grown in this section acted this morning with a view to bringing about annulment of the provision for it is believed that an international tariff war, the beginnings of which has already been noted here, would have a tendency to decrease consumption of American types and thus would react in a highly unfavorable way against the grower of tobacco.

The matter was discussed at some length and Col Sidney W. Minor who is an authority on the tobacco export problem elucidated the situation for the benefit of the trade.

The immediate outcome of the meeting was the adoption of resolutions protesting against the effectiveness of the section of the Merchant Marine Act and the appointment of Col. Decatur Holcombe, president of the Danville Tobacco Association and Col. Minor as representative of the United States Tobacco Association to go to Washington next Tuesday to appear before the Interstate Commerce Committee with the Virginia senators. The resolutions adopted today are also being sent to the Virginia delegation in Congress and the two senators.

"Whereas, our attention has been called to the fact that in accordance with Section 28, of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, the United States Shipping Board has certified to the Unterstate Corporation Commission that this section should become effective on the 20th day of May, 1924, and

"Whereas we are convinced that the operation of this act will be detrimental not only to leaf tobacco exporters, but to all persons or corporations engaged in the export business, as well as to the detriment of the Merchant Marine of the United States of America.

"We believe the operation of this section, which in effect, will compel exporters to use American bottoms against foreign bottoms at seaboard, will cause English and Continental Tobacco Manufacturers and their connections to take retaliatory measures which will decrease the consumption of American grown tobaccos:

"We believe the operation of this act will force foreign ship owners and foreign exporters to take retaliatory measures against the United States Merchant Marine which will prove serious to American shipping:

"We believe that inasmuch as it is impossible to run commodity carrying ships on schedule, and inasmuch as rail deliveries are uncertain and vary in transit time from point of origin to port, it is more than probable that the overwhelming majority of shipments on foreign vessels will have to incur discriminatory charges at port: that foreign ships may be driven out of American ports and that American ships will be nadequate.

"Therefore be it resolved:

"That we enter a vigorous protest against the putting into operation of Section 28 of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, and that we respectfully request and urge our Senators and Representatives at Washington to use their best efforts to relieve the situation:

"Be it further resolved that this association send a representative to Washington to take up the matter with the proper officials and that he be instructed to act in conjunction with a like representative from the Tobacco Association of the United States, to the end that the section referred to be not put into operation."

TOWN TOPICS

B F. Carter, senior member of the council public welfare committee, has been elected chairman in place of L. B. Conway, who recently resigned. The committee met recently to reorganize. Col Carrington recently appointed Frank McFall, one of the two new incoming members of the council on this committee, B. J Hurd being assigned to the public works committee of which W. R. Harrison was a member.

Complaint is eported to have been filed with the city regarding an ordinance not yet adopted which grants certain privileges to a local taxi-cab organization which recently put three machines into service here. The ordinance as introduced granted privileges to this concern alone in parking in front of the hotels and at the Southern Railway station. Other taxi drivers claim they should have equal rights. The ordinance was not adopted by the council for after it had been read and brought up for discussion some doubted the wisdom of granting the taxi concern a space of 22 feet for parking purposes and there was some question also to whether the hotels were agreeable to the space being thus taken up On account of these two questions the whole matter was referred to the public works committee which doubtless will straighten the matter out by next council meeting

Grass fires continue to keep the city firemen busy. Yesterday two such alarms were given bringing the total number to five within twenty-four hours At half past four o'clock the West End Station was called to the Ficklen home where the brush was abalze and at half past six o'clock they went to the home of C R McClellan on Gray street where a trash fire ignited some grass which burned up to the residence.

Randolph and Ernest Bowles missing from the home of their parents Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bowles since Monday returned safe and sound late last night. They were found near Martinsville whither they had gone having once lived there. Some anxiety was expressed over their continued absence. They arrived late in the night hungry and tired and glad enough to be under the home rooftree once again.

Jack Whittington, local scout executive will leave here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock with a score or more of Boy Scouts to spend the day at Camp Roliki on the Starling farm, preparing it for its re-opening some weeks hence. The boys will be taken part of the way in cars and will then strike out across country. The boys will work on the exhibition building also on the council ring and they will spend most of the day there enjoying dinner in the open and returning about 5 o'clock.

Writer Is Found Dead Under Car

(By The Associated Press.)

OAKLAND, Cal., March 28.— Death has ended the career of Homer Eon Flindt, San Jose, Calif., short story writer, with a mystery as great as any devised for his tales. His body was found yesterday beneath a wrecked automobile stolen a few hours previously. L. S. Hendley, from whom the automobile was taken, identified Flindt as having forced him at pistol point to give up the car.

DANVILLE MAKES READY RESPONSE TO CAMPAIGN TO SECURE STOCK QUOTA

Danville business men worked with a will yesterday to secure Danville's pledged quota of $100,000 in the Agricultural Credit Corporation of Virginia, which is to be established in this city. Their efforts were rewarded by the accumulation of all told $86,000, this being the final tolley made yesterday evening when the various workers turned in their reports. The three committees took the field again this morning, encouraged by the response yesterday and expressing the determination of completing the subscription campaign before the close of the day. Only fourteen thousand dollars remains to be subscribed to meet the pledge already given to Oliver J. Sands by the Danville Chamber of Commerce at the meeting held here recently whe nthe credit corporation was launched.

In many cases yesterday the committees found persons whose names were on their list away from the city or in some other way missed them. A willingness to subscribe was encouraged everywhere and the result of the day's canvass was considered to be fruitful in many ways.

Reports from Chatham today indicate that interests in the county seat are bent on perfecting their own credit corporation and maintaining the offices there It was said also that a mass meeting of the country farmers was to be held there tomorrow, though it was not quite clear whether C. R. Warren, who is interested in this meeting, had in mind the election of a director from Pittsylvania in the cooperative marketing organization or of the meeting was to further discuss the credit organization

FOUR BRIGHT BELT CO-OP STATIONS REMAIN OPEN

Nineteen of the twenty-three receiving stations of the Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Marketing Association in the Virginia Bright Belt are closing th season today. Four of the most important or strategic points Danville, Martinsville, South Boston and Brookneal are holding open for another week at least in order to afford an outlet to the tobacco growers who have not yet completed their deliveries

E. L Walton, local director of the association stated this morning that he estimated that fully 100,000 pounds of leaf remains in this immediate section to be delivered in Danville and he said that the association would show a disposition to favor the members by holding open the receiving stations until all of this has been delivered. While next Friday has been set for the closing of the station, this does not mean that the doors will be locked at Farmers or Producers warehouses and deliveries which may come in after that period will be graded and taken care of for a reasonable period.

Mr. Walton estimates that between fifty and fifty-one million pounds of leaf has been delivered in the bright belt during the season by some 30,000 members this being an increase of between four and five per cent. over last year's receipts.

The receiving stations which are closing today include Rocky Mount, Critz, Virgilina, Chatham, Gretna, Alberta Clover, Drakes Branch, Keysville Burkeville, Blackstone, Petersburg, Kenbridge, Alberta Emporia South Hill, Chase City and Clarksville.

KIWANIS CLUBMEN HOSTS TO FARMERS AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Kiwanis club, the largest numerically of Danville's civic, social, philanthropic and gastronomic clubs, yesterday put a new wrinkle on the face of Clubdom—a smile wrinkle, so to speak—when its members each invited a farmer as his guest at a dinner served at the Country Club. The other clubs have dined each other and entertained themselves at regular intervals with varied stunts, jests and gibes and on one or two occasions have entertained the members of the other clubs; but the Kiwanians are the first to invite their agricultural friends to break bread with them and enjoy their sorghum merriment and jokes and incidentally one of those fine Country Club dinners.

Herbert M. Martin, president of the club, made a brief but cordial opening or welcoming address and then a varied musical and entertainment program was put on by the Kiwas. Orchestral music in which jazz inevitably had a conspicuous part was a conspicuous feature of the evening. Responses to the invitations of the members of the club had been rather general and both the clubmen and the guests had an unusually pleasant evening in the new, spacious and comfortable club quarters. The menu served was a well-chosen, well-prepared and well-served one.

LOCAL V. M. I. ALUMNI ENDORSE W. H. COCKE

At a meeting of the Danville Chapter V. M. I. Alumni Association held in the room of the Y. M. C. A. last night, all members present displayed much interest in regards to the appointment of a successor to Gen. E. W. Nichols as superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute.

A resolution adopted by the executive committee of the V. M. I. Alumni Association was read, and discussed at some length. Several prospective names were discussed at the meeting and the qualifications of each carefully considered.

It was the unanimous opinion of all present that General Nichols' successor should be a graduate of the institution, and a man of high qualifications as a business executive as well as a scholar and military leader.

A resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing the action of the executive committee of the V. M. I. Alumni Association in selecting the name of W. H. Cocke, of St. Louis, Mo., an honor graduate of class 1894 and a Virginian. Since his graduation he has had a successful experience at law and is now a leading and successful business man. He served his country in both the Spanish American and Great World War with splendid record.

The meeting came to a close by a committee of three being appointed to draw up the proper resolution recommending Mr. Cocke to the board of visitors of the Virginia Military Institute as a successor to Gen. E. W. Nichols as superintendent of V. M. I.

The following committee was appointed to draw up the proper resolution: A. D. Keen chairman, C. B. Conway and Randolph Perkinson. This resolution will be immediately forwarded to the president of the V. M. I. Alumni Association for action at the executive committee meeting the first week in April.

WOMAN TEA SHOP MANAGER MADE A FREEMAN OF LONDON

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 27.—Among the names of England's most illustrious men which are inscribed on the roll of Freemen of the City of London now appears that of Miss J. D. Banbridge, who is only a tea-shop manageress.

This honor has been conferred on Miss Banbridge because she has served as a waitress and manageress in London tea rooms for thirty-eight years and because she is known to everyone whoamounts to anything in the city as the most efficient, pleasant and kindly manageress in the city. She is a gray-haired, middle aged woman and gave a motherly smile to the Lord Mayor as she accepted the usual casket containing the scroll.

Miss Banbridge has seen many changes in tea shop life since she first became a waitress.

"I think the most striking is the disappearance of the 'bun and glass of milk lunch,'" she said. "Girl clerks now sit down to a square meal of meat and vegetables at midday."

WESTERN ORANGES GROW WELL IN LATITUDE OF PHILADELPHIA

SANFRANCISCO, March 27.—"Farther north" for the commercial production of oranges in the United States is at Orland, Glenn county, California 209 miles north of San Francisco and at virtually the latitude of Philadelphia, according to figures on the production of citrus fruits in America.

In this district just south of the fortieth parallel the first of California's orange crop is harvested. In the Oroville orange district 20 miles south of Orland, the oranges are harvested each year early in November at just about the beginning of real winter in the territory beginning east of the Sierra Nevada mountains and ending at Philadelphia.

(By The Associated Press.)

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., March 27.—Mrs. J. R. Jeter, 65, resident of Caroline county, was instantly killed today when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another automobile on the Bell-Green Hall highway. Mr. and Mrs. Jeter were injured, the latter having a broken [illegible].

A CORRECTION

In an article recently printed in the Register it was said that the Providence Hospital was owned by the members of the [illegible] Baptist church when it should have read it is owned by the colored citizens of Danville in the Calvary Baptist church.

Thomas "got religion" and walked into the detective bureau and made a clean breast of everything.

SPRING-TIME IS NOW RAPIDLY ON ITS WAY

Arrangements have been completed by a committee of the Industrial Department, headed by Mrs. G. P. Geoghagan, Jr., for the production of "Springtime", a musical comedy De Luxe, under the direction of John B. Rogers Producing Co. at the Majestic Theatre here April 28th.

Members of the cast and choruses will be selected from the best talent in Danville. The production promises to be of exceptional merit, as the talent in Danville is of better quality than the usual amateur calibre. The scenery and costumes as furnished by the producer are said to be the last word both in splendor and beauty. A professional director will be sent here to take charge of the staging of the entertainment.

Miss Emily Swann one of the city's prettiest and cleverest girls and a charming singer will have the leading role, while Basil Browder a well known contralto well equipped for operatic and dramatic roles will have the male lead. Cast and choruses will number in the aggregate about 175 persons.

The musical-comedy is being put on under the auspices nad for the benefit of the Business Girls Club and the Industrial Girls Club of the Y. W. C. A.

TRADITIONS HAVE THEIR DRAWBACKS

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Violation by her husband, Thomas Gelevos, of Long Island City of what she said was an ancient Greek tradition forbidding a younger brother to marry before his seniors, caused him to be attacked by his elder brother James, whom he slew in self defense, Mrs. Gelevos declared in police court today.

Defying the tradition Mrs. Gelevos said she and her husband were married in Greenwich, Conn. last October. As a result according to Gelevos he quarreled with his elder brother and decided to dissolve their partnership in a laundry business.

Discussing dissolution of the partnership last night, Gelevos said the marriage came up again, his brother slashed at him with a knife and, in self defense he parried with another knife and cut his brother's throat. To satisfy another tradition Gelevos told the police he took from his brother's throat a cup of blood which the ancient custom dictated was to be sprinkled over the grave of a slain man while a prayer for forgiveness was intoned. The trail of blood which he left when he ran away with the cup last night enabled a policeman to follow and capture him, he said.

BUTTERFLY'S DANCE NOW ONE OF DEATH

LONDON, March 28.— Attracted by the lure of long golden days in the French Riviera and Monte Carlo, Mary Frances Smith 21, a pretty innocent butterfly, left the gloom of a London winter and found everything she desired, plus— death.

It's the kind of story skilful novelists take for plots of their up-to-date fiction. Only in this case the book does not close upon the heroine's wedding and she doesn't live happily ever after. Instead, she has an untimely grave.

Four years ago Mary Frances, as her friends knew her, was a happy school girl, with a turn for dancing. Her pretty face, her trim figure, her gracefulness, all helped to make her an entrancing picture. Her father, a successful London riding master, was not anxious for his girl to take to a professional career but Mary Frances pled so hard that he gave in.

Made Big Hit

She scored some minor successes here in London and then acquaintances in high places suggested a better field was down in the Riviera. Thither come all the world's rich moneyed aristocracies. They are bored and dull and they seek new amusements. Skilful dancers at the gilded hotel places make good money.

So the London miss blossomed out suddenly as May Vivian. Michael Rinder, an exhibition dancer at one of the big Monte Carlo hotels, chose her as his professional partner and their dance was one of the hits of the past winter.

Enter now two more characters in this little drama of love and death—a young English nobleman, heir to a peerage, whose name has been suppressed and Vincent Sirello, a handsome olive-skinned young Italian.

One Shot Ended All

He was about May Vivian's age. He too was a dancer. He courted the girl, but he found the young nobleman was his rival. He begged the girl to marry him. She told him he was silly. He remained away from her and she thought things were over and done with.

The other night, as she was driving home with her dancing partner and another English girl, a man leaped on the running board of the car, drew his pistol and shot killing Miss Vivian instantly. It was the end of her trail— and now the police are hunting for Sirello, who has disappeared from his usual haunts.

FINAL CEREMONIES FOR THE AMERICAN CARDINALS OVER

(By The Associated Press.)

ROME, March 27.—The final ceremonies elevating Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago and Archbishop Hayes of New York to membership in the highest counsel of the Holy Roman Catholic Church took place this morning in the right transept of the Basilica of St. Peter when Pope Pius gave to them their broad-brimmed red silk hats, symbolic of their new rank of cardinal.

The ceremonies were resplendent with medieval pageantry. Fully ten thousand persons attended the functions, Americans forming a great majority of the throng. Many persons unable to obtain admission jammed the spacious aisle of the main nave of the edifice endeavoring to obtain at least a fleeting glimpse of the Pontiff as he was borne into the sedia gestatoria to and from the specially erected throne.

This morning's solemn investiture of the red hat was merely a time-honored custom, the same symbolic headpiece being used for both the American prelates. The red hats which they actually will take back across the seas with them were given them late this afternoon by special papal emissaries during semi-public ceremonies. Those for Cardinal Mundelein were held at the College of the Propaganda and those for Cardinal Hayes at the American College. The red hats never are actually worn but will be taken back by the prelates and suspended by golden wires over the high altars in their respective cathedrals, there to remain until the deaths of the cardinals, when they will be ceremoniously taken down and placed over their tombs.

The public consistory this morning was followed by a secret consistory at which Pope Pius placed on the fingers of the new American members of the Sacred College their large sapphire rings and performed the centuries old ceremony, known as the closing and opening of the mouths of the cardinals, and also formally assigned to them their titular churches, since each member of the College of Cardinals must be ipsofacto pastors of some Roman church.

Cardinal Mundelein's titular church will be Santa Maria Del Popolo, and that of Cardinal Hayes, the Church of Santa Maria in Via Latta, both of which are rich in medieval traditions. Henceforth Cardinal Mundelein's full title will be "George William of title Santa Maria Del Popolo, Cardinal Mundelein Archbishop of Chicago", and that of Cardinal Hayes "Patrick Joseph, of title Santa Maria in Via Latta Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York."

APPEARS THAT HIRAM JOHNSON IS NOMINEE FROM SOUTH DAKOTA

(By The Associated Press.)

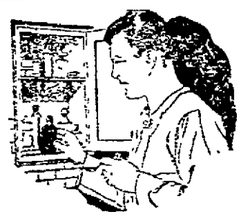

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 27.—Senator Hiram Johnson of California won the Republican presidential endorsement in South Dakota's primary Tuesday on the face of unofficial returns compiled here by several newspapers.

With only 116 scattered precincts missing in 22 counties, the unofficial tabulations gave Johnson a lead of 1,743 over President Coolidge in returns available tonight.

The 1,684 precincts reported and compiled here gave the California senator 40,243 votes and the president 38,500.

Most of the returns are semi-official as they are taken from the records county auditors are preparing for the state canvassing board. Based on these unofficial returns the president would have to carry the unreported precincts nearly five to four to overcome Johnson's lead if the volume of votes in unreported precincts averages the same as in the last 300 precincts to report.

If this average majority is maintained in the 146 outstanding precincts the final unofficial figures would trim majority to less than 1,409. Belated returns on the Republican senatorial nomination won by Governor McMaster, over Senator Thomas Sterling, continued to increase his majority. In 1,456 precincts he received 59,088 and Sterling 29,195. While no tabulations were made on returns of the Democratic ticket contest, scattering returns received here were favorable to William G. McAdoo and [illegible] here declared he had won decisively.

NEW IMMIGRATION BILL REPORTED YESTERDAY

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The new immigration bill providing a basic quota of two per cent of the 1910 census was reported today from the Senate immigration committee.

The committee omitted from the bill entirely the sections dealing with Japanese and with alien seamen with the understanding an amendment covering them would be instituted on the floor.

Few other changes were made in committee, beyond typographical alterations of the text originally introduced. Chairman Colt, in reporting the measure said he hoped to move its consideration at an early date.

Senator Harris, Democrat Georgia, a member of the committee announced that when the immigration bill is taken up on the floor he will offer an amendment to stop all immigration for five years, and should that amendment be defeated propose an amendment cutting down the quota to one per cent and requesting all exemptions to be deducted from that total.

REVIVE TALK OF VIRGINIA SECURING NATIONAL PARK

BY GEORGE H. MANNING

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27.—Virginians who are following the development of the plan of the department of the interior looking to the establishment of a national park in the east and hoping that a locality may be found in the Old Dominion, were pleased with the opening statement of Secretary Work to the committee which he appointed recently to investigate and report.

In this brief talk, the secretary spoke of the possibilities of the Southern Appalachian region, which fits in with the proposal of Senator Swanson and Representative Peery, as embodied in a pending bill, that the government accept the donation of 5,000 acres in a picturesque part of the Appalachian range in Wise county.

In his statement Secretary Work said: "The southern Appalachian region contains some scenic areas of distinctive quality entitling it to recognition for national park purposes which remain undeveloped insofar as facilities are afforded for popular enjoyment, this latter, I believe, can best be brought about through the establishment of a national park.

"North and south travel has developed very rapidly, and for a part of the year at last a national park in that section would constitute not only an attractive place of interest en route by developing it in a manner to encourage camping and other outdoor recreation vacation opportunities, but by the very nature of its establishment as a national park would draw its own visiting list as the other parks do."

The secretary indicated that in all likelihood the site chosen would involve private property, and he added that he hoped that land owners would donate rather than seek to sell to the government.

The ton register, or unit of capacity of ship, was originally the space occupied by 100 cubic feet of wheat.

INDICT LANGLEY WITH 5 OTHERS FOR CONSPIRACY

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Representative John W. Langley, Republican, Kentucky, and five others, including Millard F. West, former deputy commissioner of internal revenue, faced grand jury indictments charging conspiracy to interfere with the operation of the government in connection with alleged liquor withdrawals.

In returning two indictments in the case here yesterday, in one of which Langley was named alone and the other jointly with all of the accused, the federal grand jury also named John F. Kramer, former prohibition commissioner and Elias H. Mortimer, star witness before the Chicago grand jury which investigated alleged veterans' bureau frauds, as being involved i nthe alleged conspiracy.

They were not indicted, however, because they went before the grand jury as witnesses.

Those indicted with Representative Langley and West were Russell M. Sackett, a prohibition agent in Pennsylvania, Ben L. Moses, and Harry Sattler, co-partners, trading as the Union Drug Company and Sidney Reis, described as a procuror of liquors in large quantities.

They were charged with conspiring to pay $100,000 to Mortimer and Herman Geltzeiler and Donald J. DeLancy, who also were named as implicated but were not indicted because they gave testimony to indicate the purpose of withdrawal and transportation of whiskey from the Miller Warehouse to the Union Drug Company. It was charged that $50,000 of the amount was to have been paid Langley for inducing Kramer, West, Sackett and Arthur McKean, who at the time was prohibition agent at Pittsburgh, to "connive" at the removal and transportation of the liquor.

Representative Langley, who is said to have been one of the "two members of Congress referred to in the report of the Chicago grand jury, as having been charged in incidental testimony with accepting bribes, has declined to comment on his indictment, but his attorney, H. E Davis, declared in a statement that Langley is "absolutely innocent of the charges." Asserting he knew "the movers in the matter and their motives", Mr. Davis said, "the sufferers in this business will not include Mr. Langley."

other federal agency under this Republican regime. It was, at the same time, strongly commended for positive position adopted on many occasions.

Mr. Daugherty was frequently assailed in Congress, one of the attacks culminating in impeachment proceedings but of the general charges he was exonerated by the house by a one sided vote. He was assailed for the alleged part he played in obtaining the release from Atlanta prison of Charles W. Morse, during the Taft administration and was constantly under attack by organized labor, particularly after he used the injunction in trying to break up the rail strike in 1922.

The impeachment proceedings were initiated by Representative Keller, Republican, Minnesota, who rose from his seat in the House September 11th, 1922, and "impeached" Mr. Daugherty, making the general charge of malfeasance in office. Mr. Keller's resolution was referred to the judiciary committee and on Mr. Daughtery's demand the committee required Mr. Keller to file a bill of particulars. He then made fourteen specific charges, all carrying general assertions of deliberate failure and neglect, fraud and deceit.

When the committee tried to obtain from Mr. Kellar supporting evidence, it failed to get anything it regarded as definite and the Minnesota finally charged the inquiry was not being fairly conducted and said he was "through with the case."

Further efforts to get him to testify failed and when the Hopse received the committee's report, it voted to exonerate the attorney general, 204 to 77.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor appeared in the inquiry to support the attack on the injunction obtained in Chicago against the rail strikers. The attorney general's friends claimed his was one of his boldest strokes in protecting public interest while his enemies condemned the action most vigorously. He insisted also that he had acted as a sincere friend of labor.

There was much controversy, too, over Mr. Daugherty's ruling that foreign ships could not bring liquor stores into American waters and that American ships must remain dry, wherever they may be. Only the former of these two propositions was upheld by the Supreme Court. Recently there have been repeated attacks on the department of justice in regard to delays and failures to convict in the war frauds cases. Notable among these cases was the Chemical Foundation proceeding and that against Charles W. Morse, in neither of which was the department able to get a favorable verdict.

The war frauds prosecutions and the delay in prosecuting those accused in the veterans bureau and oil inquiries, were among the specific questions referred to in the resolution was introduced after a request for a hearing had been made by Mr. Daugherty on the basis of a previous resolution by Mr. Wheeler demanding his resignation.

Mr. Daugherty was born at Washington Court House, Ohio, and passed his sixty-fourth birthday last January 26th. He was only four years old when his father died and through his own efforts obtained an education, graduating from the University of Michigan at 21. He began the practice of law in his home city but removed to Columbus, Ohio, in 1893. He organized the law firm of Daugherty, Todd and Rarey in 1902 and remained senior member of the firm until his appointment as attorney general.

Declaring the attack on him was only a part of a definite program to discredit the administration as a whole, Mr. Daugherty declared the country was confronting a grave crisis which must determine whether the country is to be governed by law and order or by "slander, terrorism and fear."

Immediately after signing the last letter to the president, Mr. Daugherty left Washington for a brief rest at Atlantic City.

A second letter from Mr. Daugherty to the president was made public later at the Department of Justice:

"Under separate cover I have just handed you my formal resignation as attorney general of the United States, to take effect forthwith. Now that I am no longer a member of your cabinet, I feel constrained as a private citizen, in all kindness to call certain matters to your attention.

"Your request, Mr. President, for my resignation is based on grounds which seem to me untenable. As you will perhaps remember, I did not intend to seek your advice with regard to compliance with the demands of the Senate committee for indiscriminate delivery of confidential files of the department of justice, or parts thereof. As I explained to you, my duty was clear, for I had frequently been called upon to determine this question. My answer was ready, as I informed you, and furnished you a copy thereof.

"My sole purpose in taking the matter up with you was to let you know the position I was compelled to take in the interest of the public business and for the protection of the government, that you might be in position to advise other departments, if similar requests were made, what course they should pursue.

"Your suggestion that I cannot function as attorney general and defend myself against these charges at the same time, I believe is hardly warranted by the facts. You know that I have employed counsel, at my own expense, to take the responsibility of representing me at the hearings before the Senate committee in order that I could devote my time to the public business, which I have been doing continually.

"Those employed in the department have given no time belonging to the government to this so-called investigation, except to furnish data required by the various congressional committees. The business of the department if a its peak in efficiency and accomplishment and I am prepared to demonstrate this fact before any tribunal if any opportunity is afforded.

"Your suggestion that an attack upon the cabinet officer disqualifies him for further official service is a dangerous doctrine, Mr. President, all the pretended charges against me are false. But whether true or false, if a member of the cabinet is to be incapicitated or disqualified by the preferment of charges against him, no matter how malicious and groundless, and he is compelled to give up his responsible position and sacrifice his honor for the time being because of such attack, no man in any official position is safe nad the most honorable, upright and effecient public servant could be swept from office and stable government destroyed by clamor.

"I have often advised you that my elimination is part of the program now being carried out, the origin of the persistent and vindictive attempt to discredit me as attorney general is well known. It principally proceeds fro mtwo sources; the powerful individuals and organizations who resent my successful action, in conformity with my sworn duty, to save this country from violence and calamity during an industrial crisis, legal prosecutions such as govern-far more serious than the general public has ever known: second, from those equally powerful individuals and organizations guilty of graft upon the government during the world war while the youth of our land was making the supreme sacrifice for the nation.

"I have to the best of my ability discharged my sworn duty to prosecute all such individuals and organizations but the task has been beset with peculiar difficulty by reason of the fact that the official record in most of these cases was made up by men supposedly representing the government in these transactions who were either knowingly or stupidly parties to the crime.

"This partnership of the rioter and the war profiteer has ceaselessly sought to break down the faith of the American people in me and in the department of justice. In the high court of impeachment their attempt to fasten guilt upon me collapsed in disgrace to its originators and they did not dare appeal again to the constitutional court. In the low court of scandal, gossip, rumor and inuendo to which appeal is now made, it will have no better success with the people of this country who read and think and believe in justice and the square deal, but coupled with threats of similar treatment of other public men it has impressed politicians who think everything of personal and party expediency and nothing of the principle involved with the nevessity of offering me as a sacrifice to propitiate the vengeful interests which seek my destruction.

"I cannot escape the conviction, Mr. President, that your request for my resignation is also most untimely. It comes at a time when the truth is vanishing falsehood from the public mind, even though I have not as yet had any opportunity to place upon the witness stand before the Senate committee a single witness in my defense or in explanation or rebuttal of the whispered and gossipy charges against me.

"No better evidence of the failure to substantiate charges of wrongful action on my part could be offered than the character of the proceedings by the Senate committee engaged in conducting the present inquiry. If my accusers had believed me guilty, they would have been scrupulously careful to select as members of the tribunal men of judicial character, with open minds, in order that an unprejudiced verdict might be rendered. The choice as majority members of this committee, of men, some of whom have onenly, bitterly, and falsely assailed me under senatorial immunity, and who had assailed my administration of the department of justice; the designation of a member of this court as prosecutor who is the responsible author of the resolution against me; the refusal to apply to the proceedings any rule of evidence or to grant to me the customary immediate right of cross examination and early opportunity for rebuttal; and above all, the character of the witnesses, including blackmailers, bootleggers, confessed corruptionists, and discharged and discredited government employes, not one of whom has given testimony that would be admitted as evidence in the most loosely conducted court of the land—all this proves to fair-minded men that in the absence of competent and creditable testimony the elements in control of this committee seeks to convict by immaterial and malicious gossip, retailed by irresponsible witnesses. In such a tribunal, by such methods and out of the mouths of such witnesses, an honest man could be convicted of any crime.

"I am aware, Mr. President, that the suggestion has been made to you that my retirement from the cabinet would serve the ends of party expediency. Had I believed this, I would have retired when this contention was first raised. Twice since you became president and when I could have done so without criticism, I have offered to retire from you cabinet and you have in each instance requested me to remain, because, as you were kind enough to say, of your entire satisfaction with the splendid accomplishments of the department of justice under my administration. After this recent attack and while under fire, I stood my ground because I believe cowardice and surrender of principle are never expedient and that every sacrifice of justice to clamor is followed by demands for still greater sacrifices. From the beginning this attack upon me has in fact been an attack upon the administration and the Republican party, which my assailants are seeking to discredit for partisan purposes. Since the assault upon me began the purpose to attack every administration official of prominence, including the president himself, has been publicly revealed.

"The American people confront a crisis in national affairs equal in gravity to any we have faced in our history. Is this to remain a government of law and order, of constitutional guarantees of individual rights and its safeguards for equal justice to the highest and humblest, or is it to become a government by slander, by terrorism and by fear? In the battle for my rights as an official and a citizen, the rights of every citizen of this republic are involved, for who of all our millions of people knows but that he may be the next to become the object of unjust accusation maintained by lawless inquisition?

"In conclusion, Mr. President, please accept my thanks for your statement that you do not question my fairness or integrity and believe me,

Yours very truly,

"H. M. Daugherty."

Mortion Is Fined For His Part In Assault On Mills

James Morton, negro trusty at the jail, was fined $11 and sentenced to serve thirty days in addition to the six months he is now serving, for an alleged assault on Harry Mills, a scene alleged to have taken place at the wood yard of Police Commissioner Guy F Walton. Mills suffered an injury to his forehead and to his back and shoulder which was brought to the attention of Mr. Walton who at once took steps to have the matter investigated. Mills was tried on Tuesday at which time some reference was made to the injuries he received but at that time Mills reported his mind was hazy as to what had taken place.

This morning Mills swore that Will Dorcas, a negro prisoner, was the man who struck him with a pick handle. Evidence was then introduced to show that Will Doras had been sent to the bakery to secure bread and was not in the jail precincts at the time Mills said he was struck. Dorcas also denied striking Mills.

In the case of James Morton it was in evidence that Mills had struck at the negro trusty who said he was striving to prevent him from getting out of the jail the third time Wills had managed to escape out of the black dungeon where he had been placed because of his unruliness. Morton struck back at Mills and hit him. It was for this that the trusty was penalized.

Medical evidence supplied by Dr. J. L. Nail and Dr. J. L. Jennings was that the injuries to Mills' back was caused not by a fall but by a delivered blow.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 28.—Confused price movements took place at the opening of today's stock market and the main tendency appeared to be upward. American Can moved up 1 1-2 points and Pacific Oil nearly 1. Rails were again in good demand on publication of additional favorable February earnings statements. Corn products which broke nine points yesterday, fell back 1 1-2 more this morning.

Standard industrial shares held relatively steady but weakness cropped out in a number of specialties. Meeting of Leper Mission.

The Leper Mission of Danville met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Davis, South Main street.

There was the average attendance of members and the usual routine business was transacted.

Plans were made to extend information more generally throughout the city in regard to the national and international importance and magnitude of the work of Leper Mission branches all over the world and the methods used for alleviating, curing and preventing the disease of leprosy.

The ministers of all churches in the city will be asked to assist in the movement which is being carried on here principally by a small group of perhaps not more than twenty active members. More than three hundred dollars has been sent by this branch during the past year to Fleming H. Revell, New York, General Field Secretary of the Mission to Lepers, to be distributed through the Reprosarium in Louisiana and various hospitals abroad.

In respect to contributions the society makes no assessment but leaves the matter entirely with the individual member to decide for himself how much or how little he or she will give. The result of this method has been most gratifying in the case of the Danville branch, the collections always being large in proportion to the numbers present. The psychology of it is worthy of thoughtful consideration. After the business meeting yesterday the members enjoyed tea and sandwiches served by Mrs. Davis and her daughter, Miss Julia Davis. Those present were: Mrs. Charles M. Riddle, Sr., president, Mrs. I. C. Dodson, secretary; Mesdames C. E. Harper, I. C. Harrison Fred Clark Dora Smith, A. W. Traylor and others.

JEN-SEN-G CLUB TAKES HIKE

Seven members of the Jen-Sen-G club after school yesterday afternoon took a ten mile hike preparatory to taking an all-day hike to Chatham Saturday. The party this afternoon walked to Rodgers' amusement park where for a time they rested and played various games. Later they returned to town by way of Arnett's Road.

Those taking the hike were Misses Winifred Culpepper Virginia Thompson, Alice and Mary Schofield, Sallie Wilson, Emilie Reaves and "Ninkie" Baroody. Miss Margaret Proctor acted as chaperone. Everyone had a thoroughly enjoyable time and are looking forward to the longer hike to Chatham Saturday.

HOW SOLDIER DISPERSED ATTACKS.

"For two years my stomach trouble was very bad, my doctor had to inject morphine on several occasions when I was stricken with these attacks. Since taking four bottles of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy I have been entirely well and am serving in the army, having been pronounced in perfect health by government physicians. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale by J. C. McFall Drug & Seed Store and druggists everywhere.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however, handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the attractiveness of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't let gray Look Young. Either prepare this recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of ready-to-use Sage and Sulphur Compound, which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks now use this ready-to-use preparation because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

FABLES ON HEALTH

GET USED TO AIR

Diet, in the belief of Mr. Mann of Anytown was something fat women did to reduce, while doing their daily dozen.

Quite unbeknown to this gentleman, there is a definite basis for diet arrangement, based upon the very chemical components of the human body.

Thus various food salts are essential for all living tissues and for the bones. By salts is meant, not table salt, but organic combinations of lime, magnesia, phosphorus and other elements.

Vitamins are absolutely necessary for the nourishment of the body. Little is known of them other than they exist in fresh, uncooked foods; that the water soluble is heavy in spinach and greens and that milk and cream are heavy with the fat soluble.

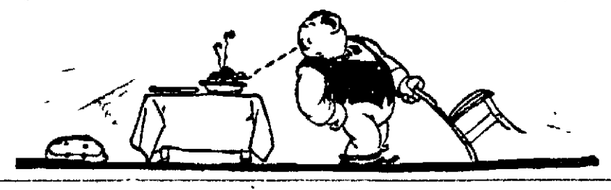

Cellulose gives bulk to the food mass and stimulates stomach activity.

Starch, when digested, becomes sugar. It is most abundant in nutrients.

Sugar is found in most fruits and has definite value when properly indulged in.

Proteins contain carbon, hydrogen and oxygen and nitrogen: carbohydrates and fats are the fuel of energy-giving foods. Certain minerals are needed in small amounts, and water is highly essential.

Back of diet is a basic need. Keep an eye on your food.

HELPFUL HINTS

REDUCING HEAT

If your oven has become too hot during the baking of the cake, you can reduce the heat by putting a pan of water in the oven.

FRIED BANANAS

Fried bananas may be served very acceptably with beef or with fried ham.

FRUIT IN CAKE

Fruit should be well floured and added last to the cake batter or it will sink to the bottom of the loaf.

CLEANS KEYS

When piano keys are yellow, rub them with a little lemon juice and whiting, then remove this with a damp cloth.

CLEANS WINDOWS

Denaturel alcohol cleans windows very neatly because it evaporates rapidly and leavees a brilliant sheen.

KEEPS LEMONS

Keep lemons in a glass fruit jar with the top screwed on and they will keep fresh for a long time.

RUBBER BANDS

Have a supply of rubber bands in the drawer of your kitchen table or in some place where you can get at them readily as they are much more convenient than string for fastening small bundles.

HURTS PLANTS

Gas heat is most injurious to house plants, while sunlight is the most necessary ingredient in their lives. Aside from feerns, nearly all plants thrive best in a sunny window.

DIAMOND FOUND IN COW

WEST KLONDIKE, Wis., March 28.—While conducting a post mortem examination after the death of one of his valuable cows, Myron Borden found a diamond stickpin protruding through the intestines. The pin has been lost last summer.

TEACHES GOLF AT 80

LONDON, March 28.—"One is not necessarily old at 80," is the dictum of William Philpot, golf instructor and club and ball maker at Prince's Golf Club, Mitcham Common, for the last 28 years. Philpot is in his 80th year and is the oldest golf professional in the country.

FASHION NOTES

COLOR CONTRASTS

Sharp color contrasts are noticed between the hat and the lining in summer style.

NOVEL TWEED

Very youthful and decorative top coats are made of blue tweed, the fashionable Madonna shade, collared with gray squirrel.

ITALIAN SILK

Very luxurious corset and brassiere combinations for the figure that requires little support are of a heavy grade of Italian silk combined with lace and without stays.

LONG REACH

A very wide scalloped bertha of batiste embroidered in French embroidery and inset with fillet and Valenciennes lace reaches nearly to the waistline of a black satin gown.

NEW UMBRELLA

One of the most pretentious umbrellas seen this season is very short and stubby as to stature and has a beaded handle.

THEY ABSOLUTELY WON'T FIGHT

(By The Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 27.—Pledges never to participate in any act of warfare were signed last night by 50 students of Garrett Biblical Institute, a theological school affiliated with Northwestern University at a meeting of 150 students who passed resolutions demanding abolition of the army, navy ad reserve officers' training corps.

Meanwhile the executive committee of the trustees of Northwestern College, a Germain Methodist school at Napierville, Illinois, not connected with Northwestern University, decided to discontinue the R. O. T. C. there on the grounds that the students are opposed to military service.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

TELEGRAM FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Arrived home yesterday. Hope to hear from you soon. Saw Paula for a few minutes at Chicago. SYD.

Letter from John Alden Prescott to Sydney Carton:

Syd, I've told Leslie—told her the whole story; and although I am afraid she will never love me the same again, yet in my heart there is a great peace and contentment, for if she has not forgiven me, at least she is not going to leave me, and I think it is all because she loves the boy so much.

Honestly, Syd, I believe if we didn't have the boy, if she knew that somewhere in the world there was a child of mine whose mother I had never married, she would leave me and tell me to go to her. But you see she has seen Paula, and has come to the conclusion that Paula does not love me, and that if she should give me up, Paula would not want me to marry her.

I am glad that Paula has, at last, decided to let us have the boy, for Leslie told me she would rather give me up than the child.

We're learning a lot of new things in this twentieth century, Syd, and one of the great things I have learned is that a man must shoulder his own sins. He cannot shove them off on the woman who has sinned with him. "For the sin ye do by two and two ye must pay for one by one!" is true, for the man as well as for the woman.

Syd, Leslie is an angel. I have never known or dreamed that a woman could be so wonderful. There was not one crimination, nothing of denunciation; in fact, she asked me: "What do you think would happen in this world if every woman would refuse to forgive the man she married all the sins and mistakes he made before he married her, or, as in your case, before he even knew her?" And then she added, Syd, in the saddest voice I have ever heard: "I'm going to try and forget all about it. It may take some time but I think I can do it. Oh, John, I want to forget, I want to forget, for unless I do I shall never be happy again."

It seemed to me, Syd, I could not bear it, and man-like I tried to comfort her by taking her in my arms. She drew back as though I had threatened to strike her, and said:

"Don't. I just can't bear it now, you know."

Syd, I don't know how it's all coming out, but even at that, I am glad I've told her.

Come over and see us very soon. Leslie knows now that you are perfectly innocent of all wrongdoing.

Sincerely yours, JOHN

No wonder it gives greater richness to cooking

You know what richness and fine flavor butter and cream give to foods. That's because they contain so much butter fat.

Now you can get milk that is rich in butter fat. Every 16 ounce can of Libby's Milk contains 7½ full teaspoons of it! Yet it is so inexpensive you can use it in all your cooking.

By placing our condensaries in the heart of the finest dairy sections in the land, we get especially fine milk from selected herds. We add nothing to it; we simply evaporate more than half the water from it, making it double rich.

Try Libby's Milk tonight in place of ordinary milk. See what new richness, what delightful flavor it gives.

Monroe's Son, 108, Still Lives

PART OF A LETTER WRITTEN BY MAJOR EDWARD JAMES MONROE (RIGHT) SON OF PRESIDENT MONROE, TO HIS COUSIN, GENERAL NELSON MONROE (LEFT)

ARLINGTON, March 28— How's your handwriting? As good as this? Perhaps not But don't worry. It may become so in time. For the writer of the above letter is more than 108 years old!

He is Major Edward James Monroe, son of President Monroe. And he is as steady in his old age as he is in his handwriting.

Born on July 4, 1815, in King George's county, Va., he has seen 25 presidents follow his father into office He has kept his hand on the pulse of all big national events. And in all the years has not lost track of his relatives.

As witness this letter from his home in Jacksonville, Fla., to General Nelson Monroe, a cousin, here The general is no longer a youngster himself, having celebrated his 99th birthday recently. But an active life has kept him young. While a student at the University of Pennsylvania, he enlisted as a private in the Mexican War Then in the Civil War he became a general.

But in all these years the two cousins have kept close tab on each other by writing—

With a new flourish in each letter

IRISH BOUNDARY LINE CAUSES RAILWAY EMBARRASSMENTS

DUBLIN, March 27.—The recent meeting of the Great Northern Railway revealed some conspicuous embarrassments caused by the partition of Ireland, which the chairman said is now two countries. Sixty per cent. of the railway is in Northern Ireland and forty per cent. in the Free State. The line crosses the border 14 times, and at each of these points there is a customs barrier delaying travellers

The company is also embarrassed by the question of double income tax and it requires a tedious readjustment before the shareholders get their returns It is urged that a friendly modus vivendi between the two governments in such a matter which affect both parts of Ireland is of more importance than a readjustment of the boundary.

Was skeptical of Kellogg's Bran until it gave him back his health

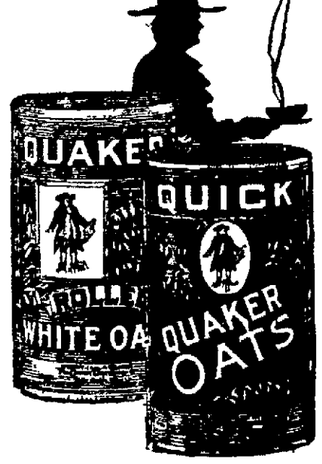

Naturally Mr. Carter—whose letter follows—was skeptical. He had tried practically everything for the relief of constipation. All had failed. But Kellogg's Bran brought him permanent relief, just as it has done for thousands of others. Read his letter:

Gentlemen:
I am 48 years old, and have been for years a great sufferer from constipation. I had to resign a clerical position because of rushes of blood to my head, some of which caused me to fall to the ground. I took an outdoor laboring job and tried for the first time, skeptically I admit, your Krumbled Bran. The result has been wonderful. I began to be normal after I had been on the Bran about three days. No more enemas, no more Old Dr. Sound-So's Pills, Epsom salts by the ton, etc., ad infinitum! You have the most wonderful product for constipation I have ever seen or tried. Yours very gratefully,
L. T. Carter, 294 Nineteenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, does not irritate the intestines like drugs and pills. It acts exactly as nature acts. Eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the exclusive, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Made in Battle Creek.

DEMPSEY MAY MEET WILLS IN MEXICO IN A LABOR DAY BOUT

(By The Associated Press.)

OMAHA, Neb., March 27.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, expects to sign papers within a few days binding Dempsey to a match with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight contender at Tia Juana, Mexico, probably on Labor Day. Kearns declared today while he stopped here on his way west.

Kearns said that James Coffroth, Pacific coast sportsman, would sponsor the bout, and that it would be 'a finish fight." Dispatches from San Diego quoted Coffroth in verification of Kearns' announcement, but developed that Kearns' desire that the bout be staged on Labor Day, is not shared by Coffroth who wants it nearer the climax of the racing season at Tia Juana

Kearns declared that another bout between Dempsey and Luis Firpo not being considered, "on account of Firpo's showing," but said:

"Wills is the man we want to meet—after we have collected some motion picture shekels. And Wills is the man the people want to see meet Dempsey. The fight will net Dempsey and myself close to one million dollars—maybe more."

THE YEAR'S SCIENTIFIC EFFORT

The unquenchable desire of man to attain new heights of progress is to be emphasized in no uncertain way this year. We already see two groups of airmen on an attempt to girdle the earth in airplanes and probably during June, Captain Roald Amundsen will strive to attain the pole by flying across it in a specially constructed machine. The third and perhaps the most alluring of all these human endeavors to write new chapters in the long record of accomplishment is the expedition which has just started to storm the hitherto impregnable heights of Mt. Everest, that towering giant of the Himalayas which has reared its head amid the eternal snows and thwarted the secores of efforts made to reach its pinnacle. All of these efforts call for courage and hardihood of high order and they show the undaunted purpose to realize what have been classed as impossible undertakings.

The effort to conquer Mt. Everest, the highest mountain in the world, has been considered impossible for the reason that it was thought that human life could not be sustained at an altitude of 29,000 feet. Two years ago picked mountaineers given every known invention came within almost the pinnacle but they had reached the limit of their endurance and a blizzard sent the party after its months of toil back to lower levels Again thirteen tried and experienced men including some who failed two years ago have again started the seemingly impossible task of scaling the glacial mountain backed with unlimited resources and once more equipped as few mountain climbing parties have ever been. In striking contrast with those hardy Swiss pioneers who blazed the trail to the summit of Mont Blanc, the Jungfrau and the Matterhorn the Mount Everest expedition goes with every known device, concentrated rations to provide the maximum degree of strength, oxygen tanks to fill the lungs with air and to compensate the rare atmosphere of the altitude photographic apparatus for the permanent record of the effort and other instruments for the purpose of taking bearings and charting the range which has hither to been impossible This attempt is a striking example of the human instinct to meet the mocking challenge of the impossible. It registers the progress of the age and the virility of man.

HAS MAN REACHED ZENITH?

The dictum of the Princeton University professor that modern society has no place for the genius or the non-conformist is no news to representatives of either of these classifications who persist in making their appearance without leave. Despite the movement among college professors and social workers for the encouragement of genius, those who are such, or believe themselves to be such, will tell you they have a hard row to hoe, and they will heartily concur in the Princeton professor's statement that the tendency is to prevereve a general state of mediocrity.

But genius, happily for it and for the world, has a way of creating a place for itself, and just for this reason no professor has so far been able to define the rules which govern its appearance or its ruling qualities. It springs out of the common clay of humanity without warning and drives over obstacles supposed to be insurmountable. Because such persons have existed mankind believes still in the miracle of genius although the professor may have convincing proof of his pessimistic conclusion that all signs indicate man has reached his greatest developmen not only along physical but also in tellectual lines.

FRIDAY

Exalting the Golden Rule

Read Mt. 7:7-21. Text 7:12. All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them.

"God seems to have ordained that help shall often pass from himself to a man in need through another man, in order that in this way brotherhood may be built up in the world and men be bound together in a world unity. Being saved though "believing on Jesus Christ" involves also the vital righting of all social relationships, because in Jesus Christ is expressed God's great passion for a truly social life."

MEDITATION: Building the brotherhood is building the Kingdom most. To be worthy of being built into the brotherhood we must be unselfish. This is the test of our vlue. Not what a man is worth to himself, but to others, determines whether or not he is worth saving

PERSONAL QUESTION: How far is my life governed by the Golden?

PRAYER: Our Heavenly Father, we pray that our lives may be more fruitful in good will and charity. May we not go as pilgrims of a lonely way, but as a glad company of children of the light. May thy kingdom not seem unreal and far away, but may we together with all thy children, be partakers of thy spirit and shares of thy grace, through Christ. Amen.

Treating The Itch.

Miss S B writes: Our school children are affected with what we call itch. Will you please tell us what to do to get rid of it?

REPLY.

Scabies goes by many names. In one locality it is known by one name, in another locality by another. Since it has come down through the ages, its name in one century has differed from that in another. You are in error if you think it is peculiar to your locality or to your time.

It is caused by a parasite which bores in the skin. For this parasite and the skin troubles, sulphur is the sovereign remedy. It is put up as solutions, and as salves, and it exists in the form of a natural remedy in the waters of sulphur springs. And yet, this sovereign remedy fails to cure. When it does, the reasons are the following, or some one of them:

Several members of the family or of the group of contacts are infected

The cured person is reinfected by some associate.

The clothing is infected. The cured person is reinfected by his clothes.

The parasite lies deep in the skin. The sulphur, as supplied, does not go down to the enemy.

When ordinary sulphur ointment or sulphur lotions are applied, it is necessary to cure all the contacts, to kill the parasites in the clothes, to spend a half hour scrubbing the skin with soap and water, and another half hour rubbing in the remedy. And, finally, to use the remedy about five times. When some irritant is added it is not necessary to spend so much time rubbing the ointment in. A mixture of naphthol, 2; sublimed sulphur sulphur, 4; balsam of Peru and vaseline each 18, will cure in three applications if family well rubbed in for each of three nights.

A few years ago the formula of a Danish ointment was given. It was claimed that this ointment cured in one application, and that it was not necessary to rub it in hard, nor was it necessary to sterilize the clothing. As the result of experience with about 100 cases, Dr. A. M. Greenwood says the Danish ointment will cure in one application, but that the clothing must be sterilized and the family and all affected contacts must be treated simultaneously. He, therefore, indorses most of the original claims.

This is his method of making the remedy:

1. One kiligram sublimed sulphur is mixed with 2 kg. of 59 per cent. solution of potassium hydroxid (as free from water as can be obtained). Gentle heat is applied until reaction ceases and the solution becomes clear. When the process is complete one should be sure that the sulphur is in excess to a slight degree.

2. Petrolatum, 225 gm. is mixed with wool fat, 225 gm. without heat.

3. To this mixture is added 375 gr. of the solution of sulphur and potash mentioned above.

4. To a 40 gm. of 20 per cent. sodium hydroxid solution is added 28 gm of zinc sulphate. The mixture is agitated thoroughly until reaction ceases, poured on filter paper, and washed thoroughly; then the washed precipitate is added to the foregoing.

5. Liquid petrolatum is added to obtain a total weight of 1,000 gm.

6. Five grams of oil o bfitter almond is added to check the somewhat disagreeable color of hydrogen sulphid.

The important elements in the ointment are the sulphids of potassium, on which its activity depends, a production of hydrogen sulphuid taking place when the ointment is placed on the skin.

The directions for use of the ointment, as given in the original article, are, briefly, as follows: The patient receives an ordinary cleansing bath, drics himself thoroughly, and afterwards rubs the whole of his body, except his head, carefully with the ointment. The ointment must cover all the skin, but hard rubbing is neither required nor desirable. The patient ought then to wait for a quarter of an hour, or give the ointment time to get into the skin; after this he cen go to bed. The next day, at about the same hour, he receives a bath and fresh underclothing, and the treatment is finished. Meanwhile, all his clothes have been disinfected.

The ointment does harm if it is not properly made.

He advises treating the entire family of the patient with itch. To treat only the patient may not get any anywhere as far as a permanent cure is concerned.

May Poison System.

A. V. G. writes: The following is a remedy for winter itch in use fifty years in our family:

Saturated solution carbolic acid, 1 part:
Glycerin, 3 parts:
Boiled water, 12 parts.

More glycerin may be added if wished. Appiy after bath or several times during the day. This has never failed.

REPLY.

For the relief of skin irritations, solutions of varbolic acid are about as efficacious as morphine for the relief of pain.

But carbolic acid on the skin is dangerous just as morphine internally is. You use a solution that is about 5 per cent. If there are many scratches, pimples, or other breaks in the skin, you may get carbolic poisoning. Look out for that.

EATING and DINING

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

It may be true that "pigs is pigs" but, be that as it may, it doesn't also mean that oats is eats. And that's an inspiration for a verse on food today, but I don't mean on reducing; keep your seats.

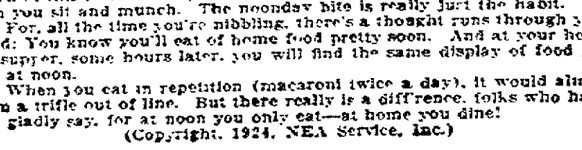

How often have you lunched at noon and eaten macaroni and also had a dish of mashed "potates?" Or maybe it was noodle soup, a sandwich of bologna and for dessert a pudding made of dates.

It's just the same old story when you're rushing out to lunch; you see a dish of this or that and grab it. You help yourself to odds and ends and then you sit and munch. The noonday bite is really hurt the habit.

For, all the time you're nibbling, there's a thought runs through your mind: You know you'll eat of home food pretty soon. And at your house for supper, some hours later, you will find the same display of food you had at noon.

When you eat in repetition (macaroni twice a day), it would almost seem a trifle out of line. But there really is a diff'rence, folks who have, will gladly say, for at noon you only eat—at home you dine!

Scoop's Colyum

DRAKES BRANCH, March 28.—(Grapevine Wireless.)—For the bedtime story this evening we will listen to a radio song from the Pump House Station, entitled: "Coming From the Dance in the Cold, Gray Dawn"—QQZYX!?!?!

"A friend of mine named Billy Prout, was full of pep and vim and every night would find him out until the stars grew dim. He never missed a single dance in all the country 'round, and every night he'd gaily prance to wailing jazz time sound. His trousers always had a crease, his ties were gorgeous hue, and hair was slicked with fancy grease, his socks were green and blue. He boasted proudly of his pep, he claimed he didn't tire, that every night he liked to step, his nerves were made of wire. His days of youth were free and light, he used up all his time. He worked by day and danced at night, and never saved a dime. As years advanced he wondered why he couldn't keep in line, the things he wanted all slipped by, the things that now are mine. His one time friends are friends no more, they've left him far behind. He labors at the same old chore, to him life is a grind. Our day of youth, the most sublime, is really age's crutch. It's great to have a real good time, but don't have too darned much."

SYNOPSIS

Sallie Peck, employe of the Fair Deal Five & Ten, quarrels with her policeman sweetheart, Michael Curtis. That night Sallie goes into the back yard to take down a washing for Ma Brennan, with whom Sallie lives. A crash shakes the earth and something strikes Sallie a blow on the head.

When she regains consciousness the girl finds herself in strange surroundinsñ handsomely furnished. A French maid calls her Alva Copeland and Madame Copeland, a tall, richly gowned woman, claims her as her step-daughter. Sallie is taken to meet Cousin Wheeler, who makes love to her.

The girl resolves to solve the mystery. She discovers that she is to be doped, so pretends to take the tablets given to her but keeps them in her hand. She steals down stairs and listens at the door of a room, where a conferenc eis taking place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I—I listened. If the girl had not been hopelessly unconscious she would have heard her and then of course we—we should have been compelled to admit our mistake. It is safely over, however, and we have only the future to face.'"

"I don't know about that!" Sloat had recommenced his restless pacing back and forth and Sallie watched his shadow approach her and retreat through the crack in the door as though fascinated. "hTere's a possibility that we've none of us considered; it was only suggested to me by a chance remark of the girl's today but there was something in her tone I didn't like. It was when she had asked me about the wreck and I was telling her my version of it. She said: "Suppose somebdy else had found me and I'd waked up without being wise to who I was myself? I mightn't even be who people doped it out I was!" Bellows, to user he own language, are you sure you've got the right dope about her after all? Are you sure you know who the girl upstairs really is?"

"Preposterous!" Dr. Qualters exclaimed. "Didn't she atempt to enlist Miss Tidmarsh's aid today in getting away as soon as she realized she was being detained here?"

"'Ar eyou a coward, Wheeler?" The dominant tones of Mrs. Copeland broke in upon him. "We are playing for millions, remember—millions! Aren't the stakes worth the risk? We know who the girl is, upstairs. She shall be persuaded to accept our terms, gentlemen, and we'll play the game!"

Chapter V

Michael's Quest

On the same evening as that on which the conference was held in Mrs. Copeland's library and only a few hours earlier Ma Brennan sat in her kitchen a hundred miles away sunk in grief too deep for further tears and on the other side of the table Detective Sergeant Curtis rested his head on his hand and gazed unseeingly into the warm glow of the stove.

A sympathetic chief had relieved him of duty for a day or two and he had gravitated to the little home on Roundhouse Lane, empty now of all save memories for him and the comradeship in misery of the old friend who alone could gauge the depth of his bereavement.

"'Tis me should be where she's lyin' now!" Ma Brennan moaned for the hundredth time. "If I hadn't let her go an' take in that wash o' mine instead o' doin' it for myself you'd have her now with ye, Michael!"

Mike dropped his arm limply and raised his heavy head.

'Try not to think of it, Ma, that's the only way. I've got more to reproarh myself with than you for she has gone from me in anger when the word that I was too proud to speak wohld have set everything right between us!"

'She knows now, Michael: take comfort to yourself with that." Ma Brennan said gently. 'The poor child didn't understand that a detective's sometimes got to do things in the line o' duty that he can't explain to his sweetheart, no matter what her friends tell her about him. She understands now that you had to go trallin' after that Dorsey girl to get a line on the feller she used to go with who stole the money from Flannery's store an' you couldn't speak till you'd got him safe in the lock-up, not even to Sallie herself, Michael. I—I've somethin' to ye. I would have give it to you last night, but after the funeral an' all I was afeered it would be too much for ye."

She rose groaningly from the rocker and waddled across the room to an old-fashioned chest of drawers in the corner, and Mike's pain-dulled eyes followed her in apathetic weariness. She stood with her back to him and he could see the broad ample shoulders heave in a noiseless sob while she fumbled with a little box she had taken from the top drawer.

"I don't want to see it or even know what it is if it's going to make you cry more, Ma?" he declared. "If you're down sick who's there left to comfort me?"

He had struck the right note, for though the tears were rolling down her fat cheeks once more as she turned to him, Ma Brennan managed a faint, quivering little smile.

"Here, Michael. I cut it off her head for ye with me own two hands just before they closed the coffin, an' cruel quick they were to do it, too. . . . Take it lad."

She turned away and Michael sat for long minutes staring down at the strand of bright shining hair which curled vibrantly about his fingers like the tendrils of a living vine.

Had Ma Brennan been watching she could not have helped noting the change which crept over the face of the young man, for trained detective as he was the shock was too great for concealment. She turned again only when the lamp on the table flared up suddenly to full flame and found him scrutinizing the lock of hair closely beneath the light. His cheeks were flushed.

"Thank you, Ma." His voice was husky with a rising excitement and his fingers trembled as he drew an envelope from his pocket and put the golden strand carefully away. "I can't tell you what you've done for me, giving me this! You cut it off—off Sallie's head yourself for me, you say?"

"I did that." She returned to the rocker, wiping her eyes on her stiff new black-bordered handkerchief. "There was little else to know her by, poor darlin,' but the sunny hair of her, for the bit of nightgown an' wrapper had been burned away an' an' you'd not have known her yourself, Michael! Thank God they'd sent ye to Philopolis an' ye got back too late!"

He stifled the exclamation which rose to his lips and asked slowly:

"It was as bad as that, then It was only by her hair that you were able to identify her?"

"Yes, Michael." Preoccupied by her own grie fMa Brennan was still oblivious to the new note in his voice. "I was near crazed an' when at last I give up all hope o' findin' her amongst the livin'—most o' the—the others were accounted for. I shall never forget it till my dyin' day!"

"Don't let's talk of it any more," he said soothingly. "Tell me again about that woman from the wreck who got in here and took those clothes of poor Sallie's."

"She did not mean to steal them, Michael, for one of the two fifty-dollar bills she left under the card on the dresser would've more than bought the mnew, an' Sallie would be the first to give them to her an' not take a cent, may God rest her! There's little to tell about the strange woman, me not seein' hide nor hair of her, but 'twas only a few minutes after the crash, when the wreck had first caught fire, that Ilse Thorkinsen seen her come staggerin' in the back door here with a singed blanket wrapped like a shawl over her head an' all 'round her, an' I guess whatever else she'd had on must ha' been burnt or tore off her for she left nothin' behind her here except that blanket. She was carryin' a fine black travelin' bag, though, Ilse says, an' she must ha' let herself out the front door after dressin' up, for I found it unlocked, after. That's al II know, Michael. They'd brought me home tearin' me hair an' wailin' like a banshoe, an' I'd ha' thought to go near Sallie's room if I hadn't smelt somethin' like wool smoldern' an' it struck me maybe a spark had come in the windey an' caught fire. There was the money an' the card on the dresser, an' the blanket a fine mess on the floor where the woman had been thoughtful enough to pour a pitcher of water over it, thanks

"'Seems funny, Ma; her not waiting to find out who lived here and thank them for what she'd taken," Mike observed.

"Or even for a cup of tea, poor thing! She must ha' been needin' it bad, an' heaven knows she was welcome to it!" Ma Brennan sighed. "'Twas only after —after I'd found Sallie an' everything was over, whilst the neighbors was helpin' me red up the house for the funeral an' I'd leave no one touch that room but myself, that I thought to see what the strange woman had helped herself to."

"What had she taken?" Mike persisted. "Are you sure you noticed everything that was gone?"

'Didn't I know every stitch the poor child had?" Ma Brennan retorted. ' 'Twas just underwear, an' a good pair o' black silk stockings, an' the black patent leather sandals with the one heel loose; do you mind them, Michael?"

He nodded without speaking and she went on:

"The waist was a new little white silk one that you'd never seen but it was last year's brown cloth suit that she'd put on her, and the little brown hat with the buttercups 'round the crown. That was all except the one pair o' white gloves that Sallie was savin' for Easter an' a remnant o' Georgette crepe she'd bought to make a sash of last year an' never used."

"What's this Georgette stuff, Ma? What color was it?"

"Whatever do ye want to know for?" She stopped her monotonous rocking to stare at him. "Sure, 'tis not like ye, Michael, to begrudge the things to a poor body in need, though I s'pose ye feel that 'twas sacrilege almost for a stranger to be touchin' Sallie's belongin's now! The Georgette was brown an' thin like a veil, an' it was as a veil she wore it. I'm thinkin.' Maybe her face was burnt. I dunno. I asked Frieda Schmidt about it for she seen her come in, too, but she'd caught no good look at her, bein' as she had her head all covered, like."

Little Georgie Wall of St. Paul, Minn., isn't going shopping with his mother for quite some time to come. Reason is he brought the fire department out last time he went downtown with her. A fire hydrant interested him. He stuck a finger into the orifice. And the fireman had to come to get it out.

Poincare Agrees to Resume Place

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, March 27.—M. Poincare, despite the fact that he is finding the work of setting up a new government harder than he expected and has therefore been unable to complete it, informed President Millerand this evening that he accepted the task of resuming the premiership and constructing a ministry.

After a morning of fair sailing, M. Poincare this afternoon grappled with the big difficulties of organizing his cabinet to fit the new political situation resulting from the chamber's attitude on the pension bills and to accord with the policy of economies for which he has fought so hard for several weeks in the Chamber and Senate.

His conclusion after the day's negotiations as expressed to newspapermen was: "It is going to be long."

This is as far as the premier has committed himself regarding his actual plans. For his negotiations with members of parliament, however, the impression has developed that he is going to inaugurate in the formation of his cabinet the economies he has promised the country. He has in view, it is understood, a reduction of the ministry to seven or thereabouts and the suppression of most of the under-secretaries of state.

The fact that M. Poincare was closeted for nearly three hours this afternoon with ministers of War and Public works indicates clearly that the necleus of the new combination will be himself, Maginot M Le Trocquer.

It is known that M. Maginot would like to be transferred to the Interior Department. If his wish is granted, M. Le Trocquer would be a prominent candidate for the portfolio of National Defense, consolidating in one department, War, Navy, etc.

There is a good deal of talk of M. Daubigny, under secretary of Finance, succeeding his chief, who is regarded in any case as unavailable in the new cabinet.

Emmanuel Brousse, former undersecretary of state, is discussed as the possible successor of M. Maunoury as minister of the interior, while M. de Selves, who was minister of foreign affairs in the Caillaux cabinet in 1911 is thought likely to be named as assistant to M. Poincare, who, it is agreed on all hands, has undertaken in the past few months more than any one man ought to attempt.

It is believed that M. Poincare has decided to consolidate the ministries of agriculture and commerce under the name of the ministry of economies, and to combine the ministries of labor and hygiene, the under-secretaryships of merchant marine and aviation to be attached to the ministry of national defense.

The radical party which eliminated M. Sarraut, minister of colonies, because he supported M. Poincare's tax measures, and expelled other deputies who voted for the government, is up in arms against the suggestion that Maunoury be replaced in the interior department, on account of the strong influence the holder of that portfolio is able to exercise in the elections. As the radicals are expected to vote against any Poincare cabinet it is thought likely that the premier may disregard the protest. The choice of a successor to M. Maunoury is doubtful, as the head of the government desires that M. Maginot shall remain where he is, in the war department.

CONVERTED SUB CHASER BLOWS UP OFF FLA. COAST

(By The Associated Press.)

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., March 27—The sixty-foot converted submarine chaser Russ, owned by Sheriff W. H. Dowling and used by him in approaching rum runners off the Florida coast, sank ten miles out at sea this afternoon following a terrific explosion.

Sheriff Dowling, H. L. Duncan, divisional prohibition chief for Florida and Porto Rico, and members of the crew got off the Russ before she went down, but the dory in which they were attempting to reach shore capsized soon after they had started shoreward.

For two hours the officers and members of the Russ' crew, who were equipped with life preservers, were tossed about by the waves until rescued by the pilot boat Meta, which had put to sea when the explosion was heard. Three members of the crew were burned, one seriously. Those on the craft reached here tonight.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 27.—John D. Rockefeller's game of golf is improving steadily. Yesterday, for the second time this season, he broke his own record for eight holes. He made the eight holes in 40.

He took par four on the 340 yard first and par five on the third hole, which is 485 yards. The only hole in which he played two strokes over par was the eighth, a 320 yard hole. He played the other holes in one over par.

By Maurice Henle.

NEW YORK, March 28.—I wondered what books people liked best. So I asked some people of many professions, trades and businesses: "Of all the books you ever read, which gave you the most pleasure? And these are the answers I received:

* * *

STENOGRAPHER: "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." I liked it best, she said, because the life Rebecca led was the ideal life to my mind. I was what I had always wanted—what I still want.

ARTIST: "Autobiography of Benvenuto Chellini." It's realism got me, he mused. It hit me hard, because it to my mind, is the most accurate picture of the life of the 15th century artist.

* * *

PHOTO ENGRAVER: "Robinson Crusoe." Ah, he laughed softly, there was the only book that ever made me forget dinnertime. It had action. It had imagination. It made me think of the outside world.

NEWSPAPER MAN: "David Copperfield." Even when a lad, and his eyes closed to a slit as he recalled those happy times, even before I could hardly distinguish between th words, teh characters in David Copperfield were to me, real flesh and blood. And in after life, when I read it again and again, these same imaginary people, created in my brain from a reading of the pages, still were there. They had not changed one bit.

* * *

BARBER: "The Fall and Rose of Susan Lenox." I've bumped around this old world a good bit and I've met all kinds of people and I've read a fair number of books, and in no book have I yet found a character so true to real life, as tha: Susan Lenox Poor Susans. There are so many of them. They rub against raw life. It is they who should receive our pity, our help.

SALESMAN: "Balzac's Droll Stories." Because it's spicy.

PRINTER: "Count of Monte Cristo." I always liked adventure stories and particularly that one, he said. It seems to me the books they write today haven't the lasting quality of the early ones. I wonder if the modern novels will live as long as the Count?

* * *

BOILERMAKER: "Mrs Warren's Profession." They don't write 'em that way any more, he thinks

STEROTYPER: "Pilgrim's Progress." When I read it in my youth, I guess I felt the need of spiritual aid. That gave it to me, as no other book did—not even the Bible.

WAITER: "Wilson's History of the American People." I never read much else. My wife does all the reading in our family.

INCREASE IN APPLE SHIPMENT FROM VA.

Virginia continued to be third havisest shipper of apples in carload lots for the week ending March 22. The movement has declined considerably, Virginia shipping only 51 cars, which, however, is twenty cars more than were shipped during the previous week. Total shipments to date amount to 9,298 cars compared with 6578 for the same period last year and a total of 6,975 for the entire season.

Apple exports for the week ending March 15 are reported showing a decided increase over theprevious week. THOUSANDS OF WOMEN TO MARCH IN PEACE PARADE

CLEVELAND, March 27.—Plans have been virtually completed for a parade of thousands of women down Euclid avenue in a mammoth peace parade on Easter Sunday afternoon, April 20.

The executive board of the Woman's Council for the Prevention of War is back of the movement. It is planned to have the parade supplant the promenade of Easter gowns.

Mrs. Malcolm McBride, who carried the banner of suffrage in a parade years ago and who later led the same group of women down Euclid avenue in Liberty loan drives, will be one of the leading figures in the parade program. Every woman of Cleveland, whether affiliated with one of the 28 organizations embraced in the council or not, will be asked to take her place in the line of march.

WANTS JURY OF "WORDLY MEN"

By GEORGE BRITT

CHICAGO, March 28.— Mrs. Belva Gaertner wants to be tried by a jury of "worldly men."

"The kind of men," she explains, "who realize that after a woman has had as many swethearts as I have had, she can't love any one enough to shoot him."

The beautiful and wealthy divorce soon will go on trial for the murder of Walter R. Law, automobile salesman.

Law, a married man, was found dead in her car after he and Mrs. Gaertner had made a tour of mid night cazarets. There was a bullet wound in his head.

Waiving all practical objections, which may be raised when the trial opens, here is a handpicked dozen men who might be supposed to have the "worldly" insight.

Their opinions follow:

Al Tearney, former big league baseball player and veteran cafe proprietor A woman has to be pretty bad, to be as bad as the best men. At least my experience makes me know how unreasonable men can be and makes me give the woman every advantage of the doubt.

(Sport) Hermann, theater manager and yachtsman—I can't agree with her that the woman's love. I've had lots of them love me, but none ever shot me. I think a jury of men who have seen many women would be more inclined than any others to decide unsentimentally.

Richard (Riq) Atwater, columnyst, poet and former college professor—I believe in a single standard of immorality. Really, her philosophy is fallacious. A worldly man would always cling to the doubt that she loved her victim, and until convinced would vote "guilty."

D. R. Dudley, newspaper copy-reader and old-time court reporter—The woman of many loves is always looking for the one love. When she thinks she has found him, she'll fight or shoot or do anything to hold him. Unsophisticated men don't realize that. I believe they would yield to defense arguments more than worldly men.

Detective Sergeant Edward Birmingham— She's wrong. The kind she should get on a jury is the inexperienced, home man who is used to gentle women. A worldly man knows that the woman who has been on the primrose path is more likely to shoot than any other.

H. A. Stalling, hotel clerk and manager— I believe that to a woman of a rosy past, a man is just a man. What they want is a good time and they don't care who pays for it. She wouldn't shoot for love.

Ben E. Allen, automobile salesman—Lots of women have bought cars from me, and I never had any fear of their shooting me. Perhaps their true self would appear when the relation is changed from business to social. I could certainly give a woman an impartial break on the story Mrs. Gaertner tells.

MRS. BELVA GAERTNER

Jesse Brown, jazz orchestra leader —I have watched the range of women's emotions under the influence of music. I believe they demand emotional outlet in their companionship, whether they really love the personality of the companion or not A woman of little emotional restraint is especially dangerous.

Jock Malone, St. Paul welterweight boxer— She doesn't want a narrow minded jury. I think in most cases where a man is shot by a woman, he has it coming to him.

Bob Sullivan, municipal court bailiff —A jury of women certainly would convict her. Adventurous men often have more tolerance and softness of heart than the straightlaced, family type But just now I think th oswing is toward severity to women who are accused of felonies.

Capt. Patrick Kelliher, police commander of Chicago's Loop — Ajury of family men probably would not convict her. A jury of bachelors would never convict her. The average unmarried man about town has liberal views and is very tolerant of erring women.

Emil W. Rutz, coffee shop proprietor— Women who have a succession of sweethearts usually display violent attachment for the man who holds their interest for the moment. That's my observation, and I think Mrs. Gaertner's argument is all wrong.

JOHNSTON CERTAIN TO REMAIN IN OFFICE

BY GEORGE H MANNING

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27.—John A. Johnston, Republican postmaster at Petersburg, Va., an office which pays $3,700 a year, apparently is certain to remain in office.

Recently the civil service commission held an examination at Petersburg, for the benefit of applicants for the apnointment for the ensuing term. Postmaster Johnston took the examination, and today his name is certified to the postmaster general as the only eligible. A credit of five per cent. is added to his rating for military service.

All signs point to the forwarding of Johnston's nomination by the president. No objection to confirmation is expected.

Open Letter To Crowell Auto Co.

Crowell Auto Co., Danville, Va.
Dear Sirs.—

Every time one of your mechanics mashes a finger or even skins a knuckle, dirty grease is ground into the wound and there is danger of infection, blood poisoning and possibly even the necessity of amputation.

These dangers are much lessened by the immediate use of Apinol. First wipe all dirt out with a wad of cotton soaked in Apinol, then bandage the wound and keep the bandage moist with Apinol.

Apinol does not burn, sting nor kill the surrounding tissues—in fact, it has an anaesthetic effect that really subdues pain. It is not poisonous nor dangerous and does not have to be diluted. It is a thin oil, evaporates slowly and combines with the bandage to form a seal that keeps out infection.

When the natural healing process has advanced far enough to remove the bandage, you just soften it by soaking again with Apinol and it can be taken off without and discomfort.

If the above suggestions have been followed to the letter, you won't find any pus under the bandage and there will never be any soreness.

Yours sincerely,
THE APINOL CORPORATION.

MEET YOUR UNCLE SAM!

WASHINGTON, March 26.— Step up, folks and meet Uncle Sam in the flesh.

He is the real thing—and can prove it. For his name has been officially recorded in the court records here as "Uncle Sam."

But the thousands who have seen him lead the many pageants up Pennsylvania avenue need no court certification to know that he is The Uncle Sam.

Look at this picture and judge for yourself.

Uncle Sam's other name is George Campbell, and he lives at the U. S. Soldiers' Home here. And he is proud of it, for only veterans of the regular army can stay at this home.

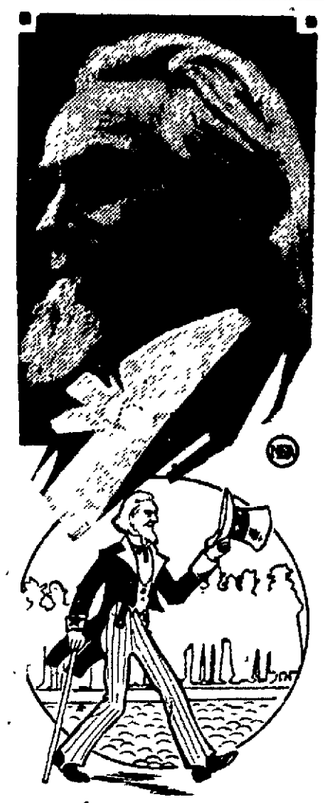

He was born in Keen, N. H., on Jan. 5, 1844. In December of 1861 he enlisted as a drummer boy in the Union Army and served with Company D, 17th U. S. Infantry, 5th Army Corps, which was with Sykes Division of the Army at the Potomac.

There wasn't an important engagement in the Peninsula campaign which Campbell missed. He met Lincoln, and all the other big men of the time.

Then as he grew up he became "ncle Sam."

No one calls him Campbell now—even in court procedure. For the Supreme Court No 1 of the District of Columbia has addressed him as "George Campbell, Uncle Sam."

And Uncle Sam —no longer a myth —gives the laugh to John Bull and other national figures.

GEORGE CAMPBELL, THE REAL UNCLE SAM.

"THE COVERED WAGON"

Greatest Picture Since "Birth of a Nation", at Majestic April 2nd and 3rd.

"The Covered Wagon," comes to the Majestic for 2 days commencing Wed. April 2 with a matinee Thursday at 3 P. M.

It possesses, beyond doubt, a wider appeal than any other motion picture so far made, since it engages the interest not only of those who enjoy the thrill of the Indian battles, the prairie fire and the perilous crossing of the Platte River, by the hundreds of men, oxen and horses but also those who see in it a faithful revelation of the experiences of the Western pioneers and find in it an inspiration to patriotism Emerson Hough's story, "The Covered Wagon," upon which the picture narrative is founded, has taken its place among the few masterpieces of fiction dealing with the development of America. The screen version amplifies and magnificently visualizes the scenes that were in the author's imagination but that lay beyond the province of the pen to portray It was this legitimate amplification, as well as the fidelity of the picture to the original story, that caused Mr Hough to express his entire and enthusiastic approval of the screen version of "The Covered Wagon"

Ethel Wales, who has been cast for the role of a vinegar spinster in "The Harbor Bar," says that she has waited for five years for an opportunity to prove that she can play comedy roles as well as heavies. Miss Wales had a featured role in "Miss Lulu Bett" and plays an interesting part in "The Covered Wagon."

Prices, matinee, 50 cent to $1.00; night, 50 cents to $1.50, plus tax. Seats now selling.

FLA. UNITES TO HONOR MEMORY OF PIONEER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27. —A monument to Jean Ribaut, the intrepid French adventurer who led the rst Protestant colonists to this continent, is to be unveiled at Mayport, near here, May 1, to commemorate the 362nd anniversary of the landing. The unveiling of the monument will be in charge of the Florida conference, Daughters of the American Revolution

The monument, the cornerstone of which has just been laid, is to be erected on the same spot where Ribaut set up a crude stone marker soon after his landing on May 1, 1562, at the mouth of the St. John-river, which he named the Riviere de Mai. This marker subsequently was destroyed by Spaniards under Menedez de Avila, founder of St. Augustine.

Ribaut, after establishing his colony in the new country, returned to France to find that country in the throes of civil war. He came back in 156 and soon thereafter fell victim to Spanish treachery Menendez, despite the fact that Spain and France were at peace, attacked the French ships at the mouth of the river and Ribaut set out to retaliate on the Spanish fleet His vessels were wrecked in a storm and when he again reached his fort he found it had been captured by the Spaniards and the colonists slaughtered. Induced to surrender by false assurances Ribaut and his men were put to the sword in October, 1565.

REMARKABLE LADY ELEPHANT TRAINER WITH SPARKS CIRCUS

Frances Widener of the Sparks Circus has perhaps been justly called the most daring woman in the world, because she is the only woman who has ever successfully trained a large herd of elephants without the aid of man. Added to this she possesses all of the control of the masters of this strange and curious art. The Sparks Circus, which is to exhibit in Danville on Wed., April 9, has always boasted possessing the most marvelously trained elephants on the face of the globe, it being conceded by all showmen that they work faster than any ever before the public and they are handled, educated and introduced by this dainty little woman, who, as before stated, is in a class by herself in a small 40 ft. ring with half a dozen of these tremendous animals capering about you, executing impossible stunts, never allowing any of them to miss their cues and making each one perform at an appropriate moment and at the same time seeing to it that you are not trampled upon, maimed or otherwise injured yourself, you are accomplishing what any woman will tell you is one of the most hazardous of all feats, because no animal of the menagerie requires more careful or incessant watching than the elephant Of ecourse there are many other lady animal trainers with Sparks Circus, for this season Mgr. Sparks seems to have specialized in wild animal acts—for instance Madam Dorothy who puts the large and ferocious group of leopards thru their paces as nonchalantly and with the same degree of pleasure as the average woman in every-day life caresses an ordinary house cat. Both of these remarkable and fearless women will be seen at the performance in this city on April 9.

FRANCES WIDENER
"The most daring woman in the world" and one of her pets from the Sparks' elephant herd, coming to Danville, Wednesday, April 9.

PHILADELPHIA STILL HOTBED OF VICE

By MAXWELL HYDE

PHILADELPHIA, March 28. —On investigating crime conditions here to learn to what extent General Butler's crusade has been successful, an amazing story of vice rampant was revealed to me by many persons who have lived here for years and are in positions to know whereof they speak.

The price of a human life here is now $1000. Almost anyone can arrange to have an enemy killed for that price. It matters not where the victim lives. The farther from Philadelphia the better—for the gunmen—for then chances of detection are not so great.

A person from Denver, Chicago, or Dallas, could come here, close a deal to have a person killed, and return to his city to point out the victim. When he comes here he will talk with well-dressed, even wel-educated men, and he will do so in sunny, bright rooms, furnished to a point of luxury.

Underworld Wireless Travels Fast

The outside world has no conception of the underworld organization. Compared to most underworlds, not even excepting that of New York, the underworld here is a big league It is active, restless. Communication speeds through on the wings of the wind.

"Let me tell you how active it is," one man said to me. "It is now eight minutes of four o'clock. If that man seated at that table yonder (we were in a fashionable hotel and my informant was one conceded to be close to the big fellows in the underworld) were to be 'bumped off' for any reason, word of the killing would travel so fas that within half an hour everyone, of the 1500 convicts in Eastern Penitentiary would kno all the details of the murder."

Big gunmen perate out of Philadelphia. Big bandits make this city their headquarters. The big vice rings have this city in a grip that it will take years to break

It is said General Smedley Butler is cleaning up the city.

"He's doing more than any other man did," I was told by a man in position to know. "But you can get a map of the city of Philadelphia. Then you can close your eyes and stick a pin anywhere in the map, and within 500 yards of where you stick the pin I'll get you dope, booze and immoral women."

There's just one exception and that is a small suburb which the underworld element is voluntarily staying out of.

Butler has driven immoral women to cover. He forced them to use more cautious methods and one outgrowth of that is what are known as "key clubs."

THE GREAT CHINA RESTAURANT ON MARKET STREET (ABOVE) WAS RAIDED TWICE WITHIN ONE WEEK. POLICE RECENTLY RAIDED THE "CLUB MADRID" (ABOVE) ON LOCUST STREET AND ARRESTED A YOUNG DANCER.

Usually four young women operate a "key club." They rent a house. One day two of the women stay home, and the other two go about the city They invite men to the house and give strangers keys to the house Each key bears a tag on which is printed the address and telephone number of the house.

They colect $1 for each key, and then they tell the men to bring cigarets and booze with them.

The key cost very little, and it is no feat at all for two fast workers to sell 30 or 40 keys in a day. Then when the men come out the women take the booze and cigarets and resell them, and with other money they drain from their victims, they are cleaning up

Butler has closed many gambling halls. Many which flourished under the old regime now are out of busines.

A newspaper here has published repeatedly that the present lottery play in Philadelphia now exceeds $100,000 a week For a time bookmakers kept under cover, but they are out again.

Bootlegging Worse in New York

The writer, after an exhaustive survey, is of the impression that bootlegging in Philadelphia is not on as extensive a scale as it is in New York City. In the Metropolis bootlegging has been reduced to a science and fairly good liquor is obtainable at a moderate price.

In Philadelphia, while bootleggers operate openly and at times within hadow of City Hall, the quality of the booze is decidedly worse. A short time ago Butler's men confiscated about 5000 gallons f poisonous liquor. The story goes that someone sampled this confiscated liquor— and promptly died. If this story is true, then Butler has already saved some thousands of lives.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, March 28 —Introducing Mr. Ralph Beaver Strassburger You'll hear more about Mr. Strassburger between now and June 10, when the Republican national convention assembles in Cleveland

Strassburger needs no introduction in Pennsylvania, his home State, where he owns a newspaper at Norristown, has a fancy farm in Gwynedd valley, manages a fortune of many millions and dabbles a bit in politics But outside the Keystone State he needs some identification for the role in which he may appear.

In order that Washington correspondents, who may have cause to refer to him in coming months, shall have full information, Strassburger has just presented each of them with a massive 500-page volume profusely illustrated, setting forth his genealology and career. From it we glean:

That Strassburger is descended from Johann Andreas Strassburger who sailed from Rotterdam for philadelphia in 1742 That he is 41 years of age, a graduate of the Annapolis naval academy, served a brief time in the diplomatic corps as a secretary in the Balkan States and in Japan, but resigned from the service when William Jennings Bryan became secretary of state.

From which it may correctly be inferred Strassburger is a Republican An din that fact lies his possible future news interest

Strassburger was the financial angel back of Hiram Johnson's campaign for the presidency in 1920. Shortly after Coolidge succeeded to the White House. Strassburger announced Johnson would be a candidate again this year. Johnson's declaration followed within two weeks Then, however, Strassburger paid a visit to Washington. He had luncheon at the White House. And back again in Norristown he issued a statement saying he would support Coolidge this year for re-election.

Now the word is being passed around that Strassburger expects to be much more than a mere "angel" this year.

How much more? Well, it is pointed out, the selection of a running mate for Calvin is yet to be decided. And Strassburger is a good runner He was a leader in athletics at Exeter Academy and a. Annapolis. He has force, enthusiasm and money. He inchrited a substantial fortune from his thrifty Pennsylvania Dutch ancestors. And he married Miss May Bourne, daughter of F. G. Bourne, president of the Singer Manufacturing Company.

But Strassburger will not walk away with the VP nomination uncontested, if that is really the goal at which he is now aiming. The field of "possibilities" for second place on the G. O. P. ticket is almost as long as for the first position in the Democratic column Among others mentioned to date are Charley Dawes, Senator Capper, General Frank Hines and Senator Lenroot.

* * *

The decision of President Coolidge to make an address in Indiana in May, at a memorial service for Hoosier war heroes, is regarded politically as a clever move, in view of the growing belief that Senator Ralston of that State is the best bet for the Democratic nomination.

NEW GUNBOAT ARRIVES.

(By The Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, March 27—The federal Gunboat Bravo has arrived at Puerto, Mexico, say official dispatches, and together with other vessels will transport troops to Frontera in an attempt to capture that port, which has been garrisoned by only a small rebel force since the departure of Adolfo de la Huerta and other prominent insurrectionists last week.

It is reported that the rebels in the town of Campeche have submitted unconditionally, thus making easier the government's task in the offensive, planned against Chalpas, Tabasco the state of Campeche and Yucatan which will start immediately after the expected capture of Frontera.

State-Wide Probe Motor Carriers

(By The Associated Press.)

RICHMOND, Va., March 27—A statewide investigation of the state relating to motor and vehicle carriers are being conducted by the State Corporation Commission, it was announced tonight by Commissioner Shewmake

L. C. Major, supervisor of motor transportation, returned during the day from Southwest Virginia where he made an inquiry into the operation of motor carriers in that section of the state. Commissioner Shewmake said the supervisor would visit all section of Virginia.

"This investigation is being conducted by the commission to learn whether all the motor carriers are operating in accordance with the certificates granted them and if the regulations of this body are being followed," said the commissioner.

"In cases where we find the motor carriers are not following the provisions of their certificates and our regulations they will be cited to appear before the commission to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled

"Part of Supervisor Major's work is to continue investigations where certificate carriers are being interferred by unlicensed carriers. The commission will endeavor to the fullest extent to see that the licensed carriers are protected."

This inquiry is expected to result in much "valuable" information being placed in the hands of the commission he said, to be used in considering cases involving the public and the motor carriers.

Supervisor Major only recently took office, his position having been created by the recent General Assembly. He formerly was motor transportation supervisor of Portsmouth.

Many Severe Change of Life Symptoms Relieved by the Use Of Cardui, According to Florida Lady.

Grand Ridge, Fla.—"I have used a great many bottles of Cardiu," says Mrs G W. Wester, of Grand Ridge. "a medicine I consider above all others for weak women.

"I used Cardui during . . . I got so weak and run-down I was a mere shadow. Sohe one, at the time, told me of Cardui. I began, and . . . kept up Cardui and was so pleased with the results . . .

"For some time, then, I did not need Cardui," Mrs. Wester goes on. "but later, when change of life came on, I had pains across my back and sides My head ached down into my shoulders. . . . I was weak and rundown, nervous, and did not eat. I couldn't rest well nights.

"My husband, who was a great believer in Cardui, having seen what it did for me in former years, went and bought six bottles; instead I take it steadily, which I did. It helped me. I did not suffer so with my head and back. My limbs that had felt weak and shaky grew stronger and Cardui helped me through this period. I feel it did a great deal for me."

For over forty years grateful women have been writing, as did Mrs. Wester, to say that Cardui had benefitted them. It should help you, too.

Army and Navy Records Studied

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Army and Navy records were studied today by the Senate finance committee in an effort to determine the exact number of veterans entitled to a bonus and their average length of service as a means of ending to some extent the confusion growing out of the huge differences in estimates as to the cost of the bonus bill passed by the House.

The committee will work for itself an estimate as to the probable cost of the bonus, Chairman Smoot said, after getting all the necessary data.

Chairman Smoot is planning to resume the night sessions of the committee.

Heathization Advantages Over Ordinary Process

1. Heathization intensifies theflavors, making a good ice cream taste better through the process. It would also intensify and bad flavor. Thus, only the manufacturer of good ice cream can use the process.
2. While air destroys vitamines, Heathization preserves them. This has been actually proven by animal feeding tests.
3. While the air fosters bacterial development in goods, Heathization has proven to be an inhibitor. In actual tests of our own ice cream, we find ten times as many B. Coli in ice cream made in air than we have in Heathized ice cream made from the same mix.
4. Heathized ice cream is a much more sanitary product. This, of course, is perfectly obvious, inasmuch as impure bubbles of air are kept out.

But —Hugo Stinnes has discovered that there is a higher power than his or that of allies or America. He has run up against Dame Nature herself The kind of life he has been leading has brought on an attack of gallstones and he is laid up in the hospital for repairs.

Truly, when nature's laws and infringed and she summons a man, there is no "appeal to Washington."

Professor Kammerer, of Vienna says the great problem is not to make the body live longer, but to keep the brain young for a longer period.

He might have added that it is not the extension of life by the dreary regime of measuring calories and thinking only of avoiding germs, but rather the keeping of both body and mind in such condition as to resist disease, accomplish real work and carry on to the alloted three score and ten years with the greatest satisfaction and the least suffering, that really matters.

For the Game's Sake

By LAWRENCE PERRY

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

NEW YORK, March 27.— Knute Rockne's ten year contract to coach at Notre Dame ends a period which must have been an anxious one for loyal adherents of the South Bend institution. It means triumph of elements among the university alumni the felt Rockne was the right man in the right place.

While the period of uncertainty was on Rockne conferred with representatives of various institutions who had approached him with offers whose flattering nature was probably comensurate with his prestige and ability. Princeton was considering him as a successor to Roper and at least one conference was had but in the end the Tiger football commitee decided it would be best to stick to alumni coaching.

The influence of Rockne's personality at Notre Dame is best exemplified by the squad of nearly 200 men out for spring football, nearly two hundred for track and a hundred and fifty for baseball. As to track it should not be lost to sight that Rockne is almost as gifted in this field of sport as in teach the football idea to shoot

ORLANDO, Fla., March 28 — On the theory that a pitcher who has enjoyed extraordinary success one season seldom eturns with an equally banner year the Reds are not counting on Luque, the Cuban, as their ace this season.

Naturally Luque is expected to be one of the pitching stars, but the feeling is that he will not lead the staff. This is young Donohoue's year, according to all indications Donohue, who is normally sparse as to frame, reported eight pounds heavier this spring and seems to have filled out generally

This added weight ought to help him in several respects. For one thing, it will enable him to stand up better under a hard gruelling fight. It will also give him a trifle more speed and power.

Luque won 27 games and lost eight last year. Donohue won 15 and lost nine These results may be reversed when the final figurations are made in the fall.

HORNSBY IS BIG HOPE OF CARDINALS

HORNSBY AT BAT, O'NEILL CATCHING, WEIR UMPIRE, SNAPPED IN GAME WITH BOSTON BRAVES.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

BRADENTOWN, Fla., March 26.—Being somewhat of a one-man ball club, it inevitably follows that as Rogers Hornsby goes so go the Cardinals.

The think to do, then, when you visit the camp of the St. Louis Nationals is to watch Mr. Hornsby, the gifted right-hand hitter who again led his league last season with 384.

It is especially the thing to do this spring, since Mr. Hornsby and his manager, Branch Rickey, do little more than smile superficially as they exchange the greetings of the day.

Mr. Hornsby has not forgotten that Rickey soaked him on the whiskers in the clubhouse late last season following a sulphuric dialogue in the course of which Mr. Hornsby intimated that if Rickey could manage a ball club he; Mr. Hornsby, could make a watch with four-brake attachment and balloon tires

It was later disclosed in the public prints that the two had shaken hands over a banana split and agreed to let bygones be bygones. For once this was not a lot of apple sauce.

Hornsby For Hornsby.

It so happens that Mr. Hornsby is a regular guy, and while he unquestionably would welcome a deal which would carry him elsewhere, preferably to New York where, as he says, "McGraw would make a regular second-baseman out of him," he has no intentions of laying down on the job in St. Louis.

Rickey will get just as much out of Hornsby this year as he ever did, possibly more. Indeed, Hornsby may be more inclined to play for Hornsby this year than for the Cardinals. And if so, he may surpass all his previous individual accomplishments.

Indirectly, of course, the Cardinals would profit thereby. You can prattle all you want to about a "team player," but a man who is out there hitting .400 isn't exactly a handicap.

Hornsby is one of the most remarkable right-hand hitters of all time This spring he seems already to be hitting in mid-season stride. Brooklyn has one of the best pitching staffs in the old league but Uncle Robbie's pitchers were unable to get Hornsby out in an exhibition game here.

Later, at Sarasota, John McGraw sent his first-string pitchers against the Cardinals and Mr. Hornsby tore them to shreds with a devastating bat fire.

Cards' Weak Spots.

Rickey hasn't nothing to worry about his headliner. It's his catching staff and the right side of his infield that should demand his concern With Eddie Ainsmith gone Rickey probably has the worst catching staff in the league. At present Tubby Clemons is rated as his first-string catcher. Tubby is merely a good Democrat who writes to the home folks regularly.

Rickey is using Bell, a Houston rookie at third in place of the veteran Stock who is a holdout, and Freigau, an Ohio collegian who was with the team last year, at short. Old Doc Lavan is the reserve Whether Bell and Freigau will measure up remains to be seen.

The outfield is unchanged, likewise the pitching staff, with the exception of Sothoron, who was pulled back from Louisville, presumably to show the boys how to wear an Ascot scarf correctly.

HAMPDEN SIDNEY BASEBALL OUTLOOK FOR SEASON POOR

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY, March 27—Prospects for a good baseball team at Hampden-Sidney in 1924 were bright last fall, but since then a cloud has developed.

When college opened, seven letter men were on the campus, but this number has dwindled to five, with a possible chance that Bob Brenaman, star pitcher, may be disqualified owing to difficulty with the faculty.

The loss of Brenaman would be a severe blow to the team as he is recognized by many fans as the best mound artist in Virginia collegiate circles. Coach Charles A. Bernier, who has developed many big league players including the Sewells, Riggs, Stephenson, and Ike Boone, will have a hard task developing a pitching staff if Brenaman is lost.

The former Alabama mentor is expecting great things from his catcher. Dudley, outfielders Ott and Davidson and a bunch of youngsters to carry his club along

The infield will be made over entirely Brinser and Tyson are the two most likely candidates for first base. Liesfield, a hard hitter, is holding down shortstop and Fleming, a midget with plenty of speed and a good arm, is at the keystone. Harris and Palmer are staging a hot fight for third base. The former hits from the right side and has a good wallop. Palmer is a portsider and is very fast

It is virtually certain that Ott and Davidson will be in the outer garden Several youngsters are battling for the third position.

Four men now comprise the pitching staff Brenaman is the headliner, with Adkins, a right-hander coming from Richmond, and Lefty Adkins, a southpaw flinger from Chatham, and Chief Hundley, a Tar Heel who appears to have a world of stuff.

The season's schedule follows:

BERNIE NEIS THREATENS TO QUIT BROOKLYN TEAM

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Bernie Neis, star young outfielder of the Brooklyn Nationals, has threatened to quit the club as a result of a row with Manager Robinson, according to dispatches today from the training camp at Clearwater, Florida. In return, it was said, Robinson offered Neis to St. Louis in a proposed trade which would bring Milton Stock, third sacker to the Dodgers, but the Cardinals turned down the bid.

The dispute between Neis and Robinson arose over the length of lay-off the player insisted upon after suffering a bone bruise.

Bowling Congress Comes to a Close

(By The Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 28.—Two world records were broken, more than 10,000 bowlers competed and $98,500 in prize money was distributed during the twenty fourth annual American Bowling Congress tournament which closed last night after a run of more than five weeks here.

During the final hours of play a record in the doubles was set by Clarence and Thoma of Chicago, who totalled 1,380, twenty-two pins better than the score of Daw and Wilson of Milwaukee last year.

The other record was in the single. The old mark was broken three times, first by Frank Kaur, Chicago with 732; next by Art Ludvigson Chicago, who hit 739, and finally by Harry Smyers of Pittsburgh, who topped the list with 749.

The score in the five men team even was not as high by nearly one hundred pins as last year's mark. The 3,044 by Herb's Indians two weeks ago weathered the storm and won diamond medals and $1,000 in prize money.

No one was able to approach the score of Jimmy Knox, who won last year's all-events with 2021. A Welch of Elizabeth, N. J. took the prize with 1,975.

According to Secretary Langtrey 2,131 five men teams competed. Next year's tournament will be held in Buffalo, N. Y.

BURNS IN DANGER OF LOSING BERTH

LEFT TO RIGHT : JAKIE MAY, CARL MAYS; (INSET) TOM SHEEHAN.

By NEA Service

ORLANDO, Fla., Mar. 28.—George Burns, veteran outfielding star of the Cincinnati Reds, is facing the shadows of obscurity.

A hero of many world series smirkishes, and for years one of the greatest outfielders in the game, Burns this spring finds himself with his back to the wall, battling to hold his job

Except for the possibility of Burns passing to the bench, the Reds remain practically intact, with a holdover catching department, a veteran infield and three additions to the pitching staff, May from the Coast League, Sheehan from the American Association and Mays, late of the Yanks.

Burns, who grows no younger as the springs roll along, is having a hard time getting started His old speed is gone and drives that used to fall into his gloved hand are now going for base hits. He has taken on weight and is no longer a feared man on the paths

George Harper, for three years the Reds' reserve outfielder, and Ed Hock, a .300 hitter from Oklahoma City are leading candidates for Burns' old stand.

Harper is not a great hitter and if Hock, who is both fast and a skilled fielder, can keep close to the .300 mark against major league pitching he will oust Burns

This is Hock's third trip to the Reds' camp.

The passing of Burns would mark the end of an outfield combination that has ranked with the elite in the big leagues. Roush is one of the great ones of all time and Duncan, with his timely hitting, is more than fair.

Bargain Rate In Wedding Licenses

—o—

"Marry now and save the difference."

That is what Otis Bradley, clerk of the court, is telling some of his friends of matrimonial age. He calls attention to the fact that after June 7th, the cost of a marriage certificate will e two dollars instead of the single semoicon which now unlocks the gate to wedded bliss, as some folks would say. The present bargain rate for marriage license will cease to exist on June 7th for the simple reason that it is the ninetieth day following passage of a law by the relentless state solons increasing the cost of getting married. Governor Trinkle has signed the bill. The extra dollar will pay for the state revenue stamp that will be affixed to all such licenses these to e secured from the city and county treasurers.

In the meantime, City Treasurer George P. Geoghegan is looking forward to new patronage at his office in the municipal building and making the necessary careful arrangements so that the dog licenses shall not be confused with the marriage license stamps and thus be the cause of embarrassing mistakes when the lovelorn swains make application.

Full Peace Quota In Virginia's Own

(Special to The Bee)

FORT EUSTIS, Va., March 28. — The Thirty-fourth U. S. Infantry, known throughout this state as "Virginia's Own" Infantry regiment of the regular Army, reached its full peace time strength of 812 soldiers this week. The regiment has gained over 300 men in the past three months, a majority of whom are from Virginia.

The Thirty-fourth Infantry was transferred to Fort Eustis from army posts in New York state in September 1922 for permanent station and was the first "doughboy" regiment of the Reuglar Army to be stationed permanently in Virginia in fourteen years. From 1906 to 1908 parts of the Twenty-third U. S. Infantry were stationed in Virginia. Prior to that time no infantry organization of the permanent establishment had been on a Virginia Regular Army post since the departure of the Seventeenth Infantry in 1870. During the World War six Infantry organizations of the permanent forces were held temporarily in this state awaiting transportation overseas

The Thirty-fourth Infantry has become widely known in the Old Dominion not only due to the large percentage of the soldiers in its ranks who are Virginians but also due to the fact that several hundred high school and preparatory school youths from all sections of the state have been enrolled in its companies during the Citizens' Military Training Camps which have been held at Camp Meade, Md., during the past two years

The attainment of its full peace strength was celebrated by the regiment in appropriate manner this week when the entire organization took part in the filming of the Surrender of Cornwallis of Yorktown, one of the episodes of the History of the United States now being filmed by the Yale University Historical Society. Over 100 of the "continentals in their ragged regimentals" were represented by Virginians of the Thirty-fourth Infantry, many of whose forefathers took part in the actual engagement in 1781.

Danville's representation in the Thirty-fourth Infantry is one of the largest of any of the cities of the state. Company "A" which has in its ranks most of the Danville soldiers of the regiment, is known in the Thirty-fourth Infantry, as "Danville's Own" Whitmell and Schoolfield are other towns of Pittsylvania county, which are represented in "Virginia's Own."

Man is a perverse animal who has more of an appetite for eggs when they are 75 cents a dozen than when they are 25 cents.

East End of Dope Combine Is Broken Up

Are Charged With Plot to Interfere With Gov't Operations in Booze Cases

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 28.—The New York end of an alleged narcotic smuggling cocaine, which federal agents charged had sent many packages of opium to Hollywood and other Pacific coast cities was believed today to have been broked up by a raid in a lower eastside apartment last night in which $750,000 in contraband was seized.

Two men, who gave their names as Michael Heller and Max Gold, were arrested by six agents headed by Ralph H. Oyer, chief of the narcotic division in Washington The agents said a long search for one ounce tins of opium bearing a picture of a white wheel on a black back ground hitherto had failed to disclose such cans in any point save Hollywood and a few other Western cities. Many of them were found in Hellers apartment, they charged.

The arrests were made after a lively chase along Avenue A and Heller was captured only after he had run to the roof of an apartment house and had thrown away what the federal agents said was a package containing narcotics worth $20,000 at street prices. In his apartment they said they found a carload of smuggled goods.

Heller was said to have maintained four automobiles and chauffeurs.

INSPECTOR OF RADIO FINDS 'CRAZY BUGS'

Write Him of Peculiar Experiences Resulting From Radio Waves

By J. P. YODER

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee.)

CHICAGO, March 28.—The radio has produced a brand new genus nut of the "pro bono publico," or letter-writing kind. Indeed, the class has become so large that Director Bean, of the local department of commerce fadio inspector's office, today established a special file for the letters that pour in. It is labeled the "nut file" and is referred to as the "dementia-radio" folder.

The letters, data and notes it contains are signed by congressmen, plain folks, boarding house keepers and religious fanatics. Several congressmen actually have written asking, rather peremptorily, that the director assign one of his expert radio adjusters who incidentally do not exist—to call on so and so, who is a constituent and help him set up and adjust his receiving set.

A woman at Omaha, Illinois, has carried on quite a correspondence insisting that for two years she has been so annoyed by radio broadcastings passing through her body en route from broadcasting station to receiving sets that sh ecan never sleep until after the Elgin and Chicago stations have signed off around midnight The letters are lucid and, except for the peculiar mental slant of the chief theme in them, appear to have been written by an otherwise perfectly sane person. One plaint of the writer was that her body, being peculiarly receptive to radio waves, they flashed into light sometimes at night in her home.

Some of the letters, of course, plainly show the state of mind of the writer, but others are from men or women who obviously are considered perfectly sane by their neighbors and friends. One such, from a man who gives his address as the Army and Navy Club of Minneapolis, complained that at times he can hear that odd whistling that comes over a radio which is imperfectly tuned in when he is on the street at night and that one ear has been completely deafened.

More than one boarding house keeper has asked that this or that "paying guest" be stopped from manipulating a radio receiving set in his room, because he keeps the windows open for the waves to enter and "it chills the whole house." Religious fanatics generally demand that they be permitted to broadcast prayers or sermons. Hundreds of these requests arrived daily at the various broadcasting stations around Chicago.

An interesting psycnological phase is the similarity of the so-called dementia radio affliction. From the most widely separated points have come letters that might have been written by the same person, telling minutely and in perfect accord, how they suffer mortal pain through the shooting of broadcasting waves through the shooting of broadcasting waves through their bodies. A writer in Pittsburgh and another in Kansas wrote identical stories of how they have suffered from disturbance of the ether by radio waves.

And it is not only the letter writer that piles troubles on Director Bean. Several times daily apparently sane visitors get past his door boy and in the most normal manner, pour into his ears stories which are hard to believe. But he smiles placidly as he says, "Yes, there is a lot yet to learn about the mystery of radio and its all in the day's work."

Fined For Shipping Milk After Being Warned to Stop

L. O. Blair, of Barksdale, and A. D. Baroody were fined ten dollars and costs each in the police court this morning on warrants charging them with violating the city milk ordinance and sworn out by E. L. Hatchett, city milk inspector. Under the ordinance it is possible for the city to proceed against firms and individuals who ship milk into Danville after failing to comply with such regulations designed to protect the public

It was in evidence that Blair had been notified by Hatchett on Febbuary 14th to cease his shipments to Danville fro mBarksdale, but that he had continued to do so, records from the express office being introduced to confirm this contention. A working agreement between Mr. Baroody and Mr Blair was also alleged, though Mr. Baroody stated that Hatchett had never served notice on him and that he had stopped Blair from shipping milk to Danville. Mr. Baroody also stated to the court that he could see no reason why he should be prevented from making cheese for his own use from milk which was permitted to be received by the Danville Creamery to be converted into butter milk, which condition he alleged to be true. Blair, after testifying and holding the same right, read a prepared statement to the court, couched in flowery language in which he sought to defend his position.

Craghead Street Property Is Sold

A large real estate transaction took place here yesterday when Mrs. Chas. E. Hughes, formerly of Danville now of Asheville sold to E. C Arey the lot on Craghead street and building thereon built by her husband about fifteen years ago. The property had a frontage of eighty-six feet and it runs back the full distance to Linn street. The building on the property is a two story concrete structure but it covers only a small area of the lot. The consideration is understood to have been $30,000 a price deemed a fair one by one real estate agent of this city who has good knowledge of property values.

Other deeds of bargain and sale with have been recorded include:

Mrs. Mamie Lee Agriesti from E. W. Brown special commissioner 80 feet on Washington street; $2,500.

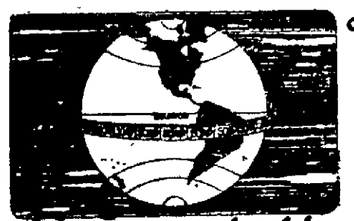

T. T Adams, from Katherine B. Rolin lot No. 5 Cole street; $150

T. T. Adams from R. S. Ingram 50 feet Myrtle Avenue $200.

(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, March 27.—Captain E. P. Acosta and seven members of his crew who were rescued on March 12 from the disabled lumber schooner Spindrift, were brought to New York today on the steamship Sixaola from Kingston, Jamaica. The Spindrift was damaged in storms while enroute from Jacksonville, Florida, to Portland, Maine, and when abandoned at sea was waterlogged and dismasted.
Captain Acosta and the crew were rescued by the Steamship Carillo and landed at Kingston, where they boarded the Sixaola for New York.

HOOVER IS EMPEROR OF THE AIR NOW

Opposed to Any Law to Charge Fee to Radio Listeners

By ROBERT T. SMALL

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

NEW YORK, March 28.— Herbert Hoover has become the Judge Landis, the Will H. Hays, the Augustus Thomas of the air.

Judge Landis is the high commissioner of baseball. Will Hays is the czar of the movies. Augustus Thomas is the high priest of the drama.

Secretary Hoover is the new emperor of the ether. He announced today, however, that he would be a benevelent emperor, that he would not attempt to set up a censorship and would never consent to any scheme by which radio listeners shall be charged a fee by law.

The government of the United States will always control the other roads, but it will not be drawn into saying what shall and what shall not be fed to the radio audience.

"There are enough complaints now," says Mr. Hoover, "against the individual programs sent out by the various broadcasting stations. If the United States were to assume control of these programs, the kicks would be multiplied by the tens of thousands and the first thing we knew we would be having a senatorial investigation on our hands."

Like others who have studied the subject, Secretary Hoover believes that the great problem which confronts radio is the great financing of the broadcasting stations. The expense of maintaining these stations today is at the rate of $5,000,000 a year. Eventually it will be necessary to pay all of the artists who now are contributing their talents free. Eventually it will be necessary to pay royalties to composers and authors. Some means will have to be found to meet this necessary expense. Advertizing announcements will not solve the problems in the view of Mr. Hoover, for with too much advertizing the radio audience he says will disappear in digust.

Radio is making great strdes n every other way except the financing of broadcasting, but Mr. Hoover, is of the opinion that the air will never be used for the purposes of private conversation between individuals. It is perfectly true that thousands of wave lengths may be given impulses without one wave interfering with the other, but the receiving instruments probably never will be perfected to the extent of taking care of all these minute gradations. At present, there are only from seven to ten practical wave lengths in a zone. Each wave length must be surrounded by a neutral band because of the limitations of the refinements in a majority of the receiving sets used today.

The entire United States is divided into five radio zones and while many sets can pick up signals and programs from all fve zones, there is ordinarily no interference because of differences in time and arrangements for a division of time between station which have approximately the same wave lengths. This arrangement Mr. Hoover says is necessitated by the fact that most of the receiving sets in use today have a capacity of one 200 to 600 metres.

"If we were to attempt to license private stations today," said Mr. Hoover, "only ten or twelve persons could talk at any one time in any one zone. And we would run the risk of a discussion of some one's bobbed hair shutting out a speech by the president of the United States. And much as we love bobbed hair, that would be quite an impossible situation."

Mr. Hoover has reiterated his stand that there shall be no monopoly of the air.

"There will be," he explains "no vested right in any one wave length. There will be no monopoly of certain roads in the ether. The government will see that the air is kept open to all comers. The government will do everything it can to encourage continuity of service from any one broadcasting station. Certain companies, through patent rights may attempt to exert a monopoly over the means of entrance into the ether and exist from it, but the interess of these companies are so tied up in the development of radio that there is reason to believe they will show great visions in handling the subject. In any event, while they may control instruments, the government will never lose control of the air itself and will never permit the air routes to be run counter to the general public interest.

"There has been no parallel to the development of the air as a means of combination since the investion of printing. The radio is the hand-maiden of the printer. The government will see that nothing happens in the ether to interfere with or hamper its future."

The REFEREE

BY ALBERT APPLE.

MERCURY

Radio station WJAZ, in Chicago, recently asked for a straw vote by its listeners, on the subject of modifying the Volstead act. Forty-seven thousand paid telegrams were received in 24 hours, from every state, from farm and city, rich and poor.

This indicates that prohibition is as live a subject as a wildcat. Also the amazing number of telegrams received by WJAZ must make an editor feel old-fashioned when he sends a reporter out to stop 50 people on the main street and take a straw-vote.

MAPLE

Troubles come so fast they tread on each other's heels in these hectic times. Now comes the sad news that the 1924 maple sirup crop will be a failure in most places.

To get good maple sirup "sugaring season," ground must be well frozen, then snow, then an alternating of sharp nights and thawing days—to send the sap shooting up with a rush. This winter has been against good sugaring conditions.

Small wonder, we talk so much about the weather, considering its virtual dictatorship over our daily lives and prosperity.

IDLE

A tax of 900 million dollars a year could be realized by putting a special levy of one per cent. a year on the value of unused land in the United States and Alaska. So claims Congressman Griffin, introducing a bill for that purpose.

Griffin believes that his bill would not only bring in a lot of revenue, it'd also force into use unproductive lands held for speculation. The usual objection to such a tax is that it can't be evaded by passing it on to consumers.

IMITATIONS

Uncle Sam has 20,000 genuine sealskins—and has trouble selling them. A committee of experts recommends to Secretary Hoover that educational campaigns be conducted to teach women the "merits" of real seal fur. The government idea seems to be that women don't want genuine seals, preferring "Hudson seal"—dyed muskrat.

SEX

Nothing is impossible to a superscientist. Prof. Harms, the German, has been experimenting. He predicts "sex transformation"—for instance, changing roosters into hens to increase the supply of eggs. Interesting possibilities for parents who order a boy and get a girl. But Prof. Harms doesn't promise that much.

What a pity, that brains possibly capable of changing roosters into hens are not applied to simpler and more useful services to humanity. Genius has a passion for the impossible. If it were practical, though, it wouldn't be genius.

SOONER

The Senate has adopted the joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to have presidents inaugurated third Monday in January and Congress take office first Monday in January after election.

It's a sensible idea. Most important thing for the public to keep in mind is that a political party by our present system is free to tinker with the laws for several months after voters have repudiated it and elected the other party to power. That's a poor way to play political baseball. The quicker repudiated politicians are sent to the benches, the better.

Bob La Follette was a sticker candidate in North Dakota. As a candidate, Bob certainly is that.

MORNING STOCK LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, March 28 — Wall Street is an awful street for phrases. Some one coins a good sounding one and right or wrong it is taken up and repeated so often that you soon begin to think it is true. One of the phrases popular during the last month was "this is a selective market." It is selective because you have to pick the one or two stocks that are going down today and the few stocks that are going down tomorrow and so on but they will all go in time and there is no use looking to France and the French franc and the Dawes report and Germany and the mark and the other unpleasant things in Europe to bull this market for you. If it can be done you will have to bull it on conditions right here in the United States. And as I read these conditions, it means a bear market and ultimately lower prices for all stocks.

MORNING COTTON LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, March 28.— News in relation to cotton is bearish. The local cloth market is quoted easy. Cotton yarns weak. New England cotton mill curtailment is growing steadily more serious. It is estimated that mills are producing not more than sixty per cent. of capacity. Fall River situation is reported worse. In England labor trouble is disturbing business. In the South the weather is satisfactory. When the demand for goods is small a little attention is paid to supplies and under conditions as they exist at present it will be difficult to bring about a sustained recovery although the market has been pressed sufficiently hard to warrant some temporary recovery now.

Franklin County Again In Front; 3 Stills Seized

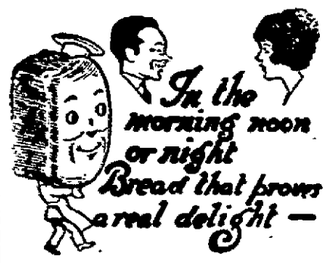

RICHMOND, Va., March 28. — Franklin county again came to the front in the matter of distilling when reports to state prohibition headquarters today told of the seizure of three stills within its confines.

At a point three miles wes tof Henry a 300-gallon copper still and a 150-gallon wooden still were captured, along with fifteen fermenters, 3,000 gallons of mash and five gallons of liquor. John and Clifford Hall were arrested on a charge of distilling.

Ten miles west of Rocky Mount, in Franklin county, a forty-gallon copper still was seized. B. T. Tyree and John Holloway were arrested on a charge of manufacturing intoxicants. Inspectors Stultz, Powell and Davis made the Franklin county raids.

Inspectors E. Frank Dotson reported destroying a fifty-gallon sheet metal still six miles south of Piper's Gap, in Carroll county. The still was discovered about 120 yard from the house of Wade Crouse, who was arrested. According to the report, Crouse was 'breaking up mash' when Inspector Dotson arrived at the still.
